RUPTURE.

Since the opening of the Vienna Institute for the cure of Rupture, at 1113 Washington avenue, this city, several thousand ruptured persons applied to us for treatment, many of whom, from long-continued truss pressure, were victims of kidney diseases, bowel troubles, back-aches, fevers, and many other diseases. In many cases, such as that of Mr. Wm. Hubbard, of Hannibal, Mo., the rupture was over thirty inches in circumference. In every case complete relief was given, and the patient enabled to resume his occupation free from danger of a recurrence of the rupture, as the persons themselves, and many of our leading physicians, can testify.

Reference, in St. Louis: John Buehler, 1011 Cass avenue, ruptured 25 years; M. Kern, 3143 Vineyard street, ruptured 30 years; G. Loehr, 1516 North Market street, 15 years; Geo. Lay, Carondelet, 19 years; A. Rautkotter, 1608 Montgomery street, 6 years; J. Eyler, Carondelet, 7 years; H. Hotterman, Natural Bridge road and Papin avenue, 14 years; A. Winkler, 809 South Twenty-second street; H. Zuler, 1403 North Thirteenth street; Joseph Stark, Carlyle, Ill., 33. Physicians: Dr. J. B. Flanders, 901 Olive street; Dr. Harder, 1014 Brooklyn street; Dr. Field, Fourteenth and Lucas avenue, and many other prominent physicians.

Education in the Army.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, November 17.—The annual report of Chaplain Mullen, of St. Louis, in charge of education in the army, has reached the Secretary of War. It shows that 105 military posts and camps are supplied with teachers. The schools were attended during the year by 1,586 enlisted men and 1,569 children, 987 of the latter being children of enlisted men, 370 the children of officers, and 412 those of civilians. At 32 posts there were no teachers. One hundred and forty-seven posts and camps have libraries with a total of 450,709 volumes or 2½ volumes to each enlisted man in the garrison. The number of books circulated per month is 22,836 or an average of 2½ per man per month. A large number of papers and periodicals were also received and placed in the reading rooms, the average daily attendance upon which is 43,752. The report recommends the passage of the bill now pending providing for the employment of 150 teachers at the pay of a Commissary Sergeant, $34 per month, with an allowance for rations, room, etc., and wearing distinct uniform. He joins in the recommendation of several officers that a system of compulsory education be enforced among the men in certain cases, and in appealing for a larger light fund for night schools, remarks that to furnish light for colored schools requires about one-third more burners than for the others.

Failures for the Week.

NEW YORK, November 17.—The business failures for the week reported to New York number 139, of which 131 took place in the country and eight in New York City. The Eastern States had 23, Western 37, Southern 9, Middle 18, Pacific 12 and Canada 12.

NEW YORK, November 17.—Jacob Van Wagenon, capitalist, of New York, has assigned because of trouble arising from the failure of Alonzo Follett. Paine & Sackett have liabilities of $325,000; assets, $158,000. D. Arnott & Co., Toronto, owe $255,000; assets very small. D. W. Coleridge, grain, Portland, Me., has liabilities of about $100,000. J. P. McCall, dry goods, Chattanooga, Tenn.; liabilities, $40,000; assets, nominal, $75,000. No business disaster of importance occurred in New York during the past week which seems to be exceptionally free from trade trouble just at present.

WASHINGTON.

Coming Contests in the Next Congress.

A Republican Political Dodge—The Stalwarts and the Republican Party.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, November 17.—The Democrats who were very angry when the Republicans unseated a half dozen of their members in the last House, will have opportunity to get even next session. Notices of contests are coming in from all quarters. In Republican Minnesota two or three are promised, based on alleged irregularities in the election, and it is probable that two of the five Republican delegates from that State will be replaced by Democrats. The claim of Mr. Wm. Walter Phelps, late U. S. Minister to Austria, to the seat from the Fifth New Jersey District, will be contested by John Ryle, on grounds of fraud in the election. Paul's claim to a seat from the Seventh Virginia District will doubtless be contested by O'Ferrall on grounds that the returns from certain of the precincts were sent in unsealed, and it is very probable Mr. Paul will find little mercy at the hands of the side whose members he aided in unseating last session. Maxey, the Democratic candidate for Congressman at large from Virginia, has indicated that he believes himself fairly elected, and will therefore claim the seat. McKinley of Ohio, the tariff champion, will doubtless be ousted in short order, as to the man who looks through Democratic spectacles his opponent has good grounds for contest. Between Dockery (Republican) and Jarvis (Democrat), candidates at large from North Carolina, there will doubtless be a contest, should Dockery claim the seat, as he doubtless will. In the Fifth Iowa District the failure of one of the Judges in one township to sign the returns gives opportunity for the rejection of the vote and the turning of the district majority from 23 Republican votes to 17 Democratic. In the Ninth Missouri District Gen. Broadhead will contest the seat claimed by McLean (Republican), on a margin of 21 votes.

There are a number of others, the details of which have not come in yet, but it is probable the number will range as high as twenty-five and some say fifty.

A HIGH TRUMP AND A DESPERATE GAME.

It is whispered here that the Republicans will play a trump card in the political game next session in the shape of another arrears of pension bill, granting arrears of pensions to hundreds of thousands of soldiers who have not yet applied, and thus making it impossible for the Democrats in their next Congress to reduce the expenditures of the Government as they hope to do. Of course they will not want to oppose the soldier or anything for his benefit, and yet if this is done by the present Congress it will prevent the carrying out of the plans now made of reducing expenses very materially. To do this would, of course, be a mere piece of demagoguery, a game to kill off the Democracy with the soldiers, or else steal their campaign ammunition in the way of low taxes, yet it is believed by many that the plan may at least be attempted.

THE STALWARTS AND THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

The Stalwarts say that the fate of the Republican party now rests solely with them. The element which kicked out of the traces, they say, is entirely out now, and the control of the party belongs to those who staid inside. A prominent and clear-headed Massachusetts Stalwart here said, in talking of the situation:

"The great mistake that the seceders of 1882 made was in seceding. They ought to have seen that, for it was exemplified in the larger rebellion and secession of our Southern brethren twenty years ago. The great mistake of the South was in going out of the Union. By doing that they left us in undisturbed control of the organization, and we whipped 'em. So those who left the party this year made their mistake. They went out of it and have left us in control, and our duty will be to manage it the best we can."

"And make the nomination in 1884?"

"Yes, without doubt. The only question now is to find a man who will command the honor and high regard of the country, and who will thus get the votes of the 'moving element,' which left us this time. Of course, this will require great care, and it is only by great care that we are to succeed."

In New York, it is held by the friends of the Administration, the number of Republicans who voted for the Democratic candidates was much smaller than has been generally supposed. They say that the Democratic vote was about eight per cent less than in the last Presidential election, which proves that it has no great Republican accessions, while the Republican vote was forty per cent less than in 1880. This vote, they say, will come out to support a candidate on whom the party can unite in 1874, and will enable them to pull through again at that time. The Critic, Brady's newspaper here, is out for Gen. Logan as the Presidential nominee in 1884, saying he is the man who can unite the factions and carry the soldier vote without fail.

The Fastest Two Miles.

NEW YORK, November 17.—Lee, the oarsman, will sail for Liverpool early in December, and will offer to row any sculler in England three miles for $500 or $1,000 a side.

A day or two ago the brown mare, Manetta, hooked double to a road wagon with the running horse, Longman, trotted two miles in the extraordinary time of 4:27¼, the first mile in 2:14½, and the second in 2:12¾. The mare did not wear breeching, therefore, outside of his taking the major part of the weight, she received no assistance from Longman. The track was a trifle dull and slippery. The two miles are the fastest ever trotted. The first quarter of the second mile was trotted in 34¼ seconds, the second in 33¾ seconds, the third in 32 seconds, and the fourth in 32¾ seconds. The last half mile was done in 1:04¾. The speed increased as the distance lengthened. Manetta is 10 years old.

Brutal Crime.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PANA, ILL., November 17—Yesterday afternoon Lena Zinn, a girl eighteen years old, on her way from Mattoon to Beardstown, Ill., missed connections here, and while waiting at the depot was enticed away about six o'clock by John Keller and Wm. Coulter, two young toughs of the town, one representing himself to her as an officer, the other as a hotel-runner, they took her to the East School-house grounds, and, forcing her into an outhouse, brutally and criminally assaulted her. They are under arrest, together with a chum, William Craiger, who claims he only followed them. Their preliminary trial will be held this afternoon.

Suicide.

CLEVELAND, O., November 17.—Homer W. Barnes, a young well-to-do merchant of Brooksville, this county, last evening went to his barn and fired a charge of buckshot into his heart. Death was immediate. Domestic trouble is alleged as the cause.

LATEST EDITION.

THE WHOLE QUESTION.

What Broadhead Has Asked the Supreme Court to Do.

The Probable Result--Preparations for the Contest Over City Offices.

The questions at issue between McLean and Broadhead in the race for Congress in the Ninth Congressional District have been so much discussed, that scarcely anybody now understands what are the points in dispute. There has been so much said about mandamus and quo warranto and other legal fuss and feathers, that, outside of the attorneys in the case, very few understand just what Broadhead went up to Jefferson City to ask the Supreme Court to do. Yet the case is a very simple one and admits of an easy explanation. In the first place, there are five precincts in dispute, numbered 97, 111, 155, 189, and 203.

Precinct No. 97 was in the Tenth Ward and the polling place was at 1217 Lucas avenue. The boundaries were Eleventh street, Lucas avenue, Fifteenth street and Morgan street. The judges and clerks, as originally appointed, were as follows: Judges: John Francis, Richard Fountain, Terrence McCabe and John Tully. Clerks: Louis Wilson and Henry Shaw.

Precinct No. 111 was also in the Tenth Ward, with the polling place at No. 2400 Franklin avenue. The boundaries were Twenty-third street, Morgan, Jefferson avenue and Carr street. The judges and clerks appointed by the Mayor were: Judges: Henry Gould, Charles Palmer, John McCormack and Samuel Goldstein. Clerks: John Judlin and Chas. H. Mason.

Precinct 155 was in the Fifteenth Ward and was bounded as follows: East by Fourteenth street to Chouteau avenue, thence to Morton street, thence to Hickory street, south by Hickory street, west by Grattan street to Chouteau avenue, thence to Sixteenth street, thence to Pacific Railroad, north by Pacific Railroad. Voting place at J. W. Fitzgerald's, southeast corner of Grattan and La Salle street. Judges: John B. Ford, Edward S. Bender, Chas. Hoyle and Wm. Keating. Clerks: Henry A. Sterlin and Samuel A. Lowe.

Precinct 189, in the Eighteenth Ward, had the following location: East by Summit avenue, south by Pacific Railroad, west by Compton avenue, north by Clarke avenue. Voting place at Mrs. Mary Lynch's, 2915 Small street. Judges: J. P. Gronemeyer, Warren H. Fox, Mathew Ryan and John Mullany. Clerks: Wm. B. Dalton and J. L. Wilkinson.

Precinct 203 of the Nineteenth Ward was bounded as follows: East by Summit avenue to Chouteau avenue, thence to California avenue, thence to Park avenue, south by Park avenue, west by Compton avenue, north by Pacific Railroad. Voting place at Wm. Ernst's, 2833 Chouteau avenue. Judges: August Meier, August North, Thomas Gunn and John A. Lynch. Clerks: Leo Schmalz and F. W. Koehl.

In some instances the judges and clerks resigned, but in the main the names given are the ones that will be called as witnesses when the depositions are taken to be forwarded to the Supreme Court. The questions which have arisen are as follows: When the Canvassing Board, composed of Messrs. Berg, Raum, Taaffe and Hoblitzelle, came to count the returns of the judges and clerks, they found that several singular things had occurred. For instance, the poll-books from precincts 97, 111 and 203 were found to be entirely blank, containing neither signatures nor returns. The books from Precincts 155 and 189 contained figures and signatures, but were defective in this way: In neither of them was there any returns set down specifically, as cast for the office of Congressman in the Ninth District. The Second District returns were all ship-shape, but those from the Ninth were not so marked. The books had been so made out as to leave the Ninth District blank, not even the names being printed on. This was done because some of the precincts were not in both districts, and the duty was left to the judges and clerks of writing in names and figures in all the precincts which were in the Ninth. Now, in 155 and 189 the judges wrote in names and figures, but did not specify for what district they were cast. When Berg ran up against this state of facts, he stopped the court and referred the whole matter to City Counselor Bell. There were five other defective precincts, but those given are the only ones mentioned in the alternative writ of mandamus, and are consequently the only ones figuring in the fight. Mr. Bell, in his advice to Register Berg, told him that in cases in which the poll-books were found to be blank, the judges and clerks had not returned the books as specified and required by law, and that the Register had a right to demand the proper books from the judges. In the cases in which the returns were not distinctly marked for the Ninth District. Mr. Bell's advice was that the board, the functions of which were purely ministerial, had a right to correct manifest clerical errors, which were plainand apparent, and nothing more. Mr. Berg was further informed that when the judges had made their returns their duties ceased, and that the Register had no right to call them in to carrect or amend returns which they had made. Mr. Berg went to work under this advice. a call was made on the judges in precincts 97, 111 and 203, where the poll books were found to be blank. They said that they had made out their returns in proper shape and signed them. Then a curious fact was developed. It was ascertained that two sets of poll-books had been furnished at each precinct, the regular poll-book in a white cover, and another book in a yellow cover, intended by McLean's friends to be kept as a check. The yellow books were an exact copy of the others, and were furnished by the Recorder of Voters. The judges in the precincts mentioned had made a mistake, and had put their totals and signatures in the yellow-covered books, not using the white ones at all. When asked where these books were they said they must be in the ballot-boxes, and they were found there by the Register, properly filled out and signed. Register Berg came to the conclusion that under Mr. Bell's advice these were the poll books required to be returned from Precincts 97, 111 and 203 under the law, and the board, or at least Berg and Raum, decided to count the figures as there given. In numbers 155 and 189 it was found, as previously stated, that the returns from the Ninth District were not so marked. Mr. Berg concluded, from Mr. Bell's opinion, that he could not call in the judges to ask them what they meant by the figures there given, so he decided to throw them out and he did so. In the case of 155 there is a letter that looks like an "S," and the word "district" before the figures, as if the Judge had started to write Second District. Now, Mr. Broadhead goes up to Jefferson City and asks the Supreme Court to compel the Register to show cause why he did not count Precincts 155 and 189, and why he did not reject 97, 111 and 203. If the case goes as the Broadhead men wish, of course, numbers 155 and 189 will be counted and numbers 97, 111 and 203, now counted, will be rejected. It may be that all the precinct returns will be counted. The possible effects of the decision will be as follows: On the count as now made by the Register, McLean has a majority of 21 for the long term. If the Supreme Court does nothing but agree to count Precincts 155 and 189 the vote is then as follows: Precinct 155, McLean, 104; Broadhead, 138; majority for Broadhead, 34. In Precinct 189, McLean, 54; Broadhead, 143; majority for Broadhead, 79. Under this view of the case Broadhead gains 113 votes, which does away with McLean's 21 majority and elects Broadhead by 92 votes. If the Supreme Court should go further and cast out Precincts 97, 111 and 203, it will be still worse for McLean, as he has majorities in all of them. The vote in these was as follows: Precinct No. 97, McLean, 109; Broadhead, 71. Precinct No. 111, McLean, 130; Broadhead, 102. Precinct No. 203, McLean, 108; Broadhead, 89. It will be seen that McLean's aggregate majority in these is 85 votes, and if the demand of the Broadhead petition is carried out in full, McLean is defeated by 198 votes. It is thought probable that the court will simply order all the precincts counted, which will give Broadhead the seat by 113 votes.

Mr. Metcalfe, talking about the case this morning, said: "We claim that Register Berg and the board have followed the law and have footed up the returns. We claim that they have done their full duty, as they understand it. They have made the returns, and our position is that the Supreme Court has no right to change them. We hold that the certificate should be issued on the face of the returns, and that the questions raised in the alternative writ of mandamus should be left to Congress, to be settled in a contest. As I told you yesterday, however, the Supreme Court has, contrary to its universal rule, determined to go into judgment on questions of fact, and all we can do is wait and see what they will do."

There is one question also not mentioned above. Berg and Raum have signed the returns and they are all ready to forward to the Secretary of State. McLean's attorneys therefore claim that the Board of Canvassers had finished their labors before the writ of mandamus reached them. Taaffe, however, refused to sign, and Broadhead asserts that the duties of the board are not over.

The Contest.

Mr. Amos R. Taylor, one of the attorneys engaged to make the contest about the Silk Stocking tickets, was seen this morning. He said that he had fully entered on the matter, but could not yet say when the first move would be made. Neither had he determined yet, as to what course of proceeding he would pursue.

"I know," said Mr. Taylor, "that the desire of all parties concerned in this matter is to settle the question in the quickest and cheapest manner possible. A quo warranto coming from the Supreme Court would answer the purpose best unless we could make up an agreed case, have it pushed forward to the Supreme Court and advanced on the docket there. We might be able to do that. Anyhow, we will determine in a day or two. There are several ways of raising and settling the questions at issue."

Ex-Senator M. H. Phelan, who wrote the State election law, still insists that, when he wrote it, he directly intended it to cover such a case as the Silk Stocking ticket, and that, if it does not do so, he is all at sea about the matter

No attempt has yet been made to bring up the question of counting the Independent ballots. It is probable that McLean will do something in this direction if the State Supreme Court decides against him on the 1st of December.

The Delayed Certificates.

The men who were elected on November 7 are still calling on Register Berg for their certificates without avail. An attempt is being made to-day to get Messrs. Hoblitzelle and Taeffe to come in and certify to the returns, so that certificates can be issued to the members of the Legislature, Justices of the Peace and Constables. This will be probably fixed to-day. It will be remembered that Broadhead's petition asks that three whole precincts be thrown out, and if this is done it will affect the whole city vote. It will not, however, change the result, so far as the election is concerned, of any member of the Legislature. Only one Justice of the Peace and one Constable's vote is affected, and both of them are still elected, even if the precincts are cast out. The trouble about the members of the Legislature is that the Governor makes up several committees of the Legislature before it meets, and that if the certificates are not issued the Governor will have to leave the city out in making these committees. About the city ticket the delay does not make much difference. None of the city officers save Van Wagoner and Noonan take their seats before January first. The law requires them to qualify within twenty days after the election, but the lawyers claim that this does not refer to a case where the certificate is withheld.

A NEW ORLEANS VIEW.

The Cotton Crop, the Freight Bureau and the Ocean Tonnage.

Mr. J. D. Peet, of New Orleans, is in St. Louis, the guest of Mr. Ewing Hill. He is one of the foremost cotton exporters of the Crescent City, and during his visit on 'Change he was frequently appealed to to forecast the crop. "I think," said he to a POST-DISPATCH reporter, "that there is at least a three-quarter crop. it ought to turn out seven millions."

"And how about prices?"

"It is a hard question to answer. I suppose for a quick transaction it is a good sale at present figures. I would rather wait awhile, however, and buy."

"What do you New Orleans people think of the Freight Bureau movement?"

"What we have seen we like very much indeed. St. Louis ought to do her importing by way of New Orleans. It is the natural route."

"How about tonnage?"

"Just now it is very hard to get goods out, and there is a great scarcity of tonnage in our city. There was so much October shipment that it has cleared the port."

"What chance is there of a regular line of steamers?"

"I understand that it is settled that the Anchor Line will put on a line of steamers between New Orleans and Europe. You know that ships go there after freight all the time."

"How about the railroad building in Louisiana? Will not the Erlanger Road make a through line to New York which will carry interior freights past you?"

"I do not think so. The result of the present road building will be to give us a through line to New York, and to give us another line of communication with the country behind us."

THE CRIMINAL BENCH.

Judge Van Wagoner Warmly Replies to Charges of Undue Haste.

A Change on the Bench and Its Effects on the Bar and Jail.

Before Judge Laughlin disposed of the docket this morning in the Criminal Court he called up the members of the bar and stated that Judge-elect Van Wagoner desired to make a statement. Judge Van Wagoner approached the bar and said: "May it please the court, I find from the public press this morning—and I will not say I do not care for the criticism, for I do care—that a seeming undue haste has been shown in taking my seat upon the bench so soon, and that I am thereby jeopardizing the right of some criminals who have been convicted before this court; the interests of the community, and possibly the city will be put to great expense by my action, and that men may escape justice. If it please your honor, I hold in my hand your letter asking me when I will take my seat, and suggesting a consultation that I might acquaint myself with the condition of the public business. At our first consultation you told me the condition of the docket, and I told you that if possible I desired that this term should be occupied by yourself. After examining things critically, I found myself in this position. Turning to section 12 on Criminal Court I found: 'Immediately after the election of said Judge the Register of the city of St. Louis shall transmit to the Governor a certificate of such election, who shall thereupon issue a commission to the person so certified to be elected as Judge of said Criminal Court.' There is no statute providing, requiring or permitting me to wait until January 1, 1883, as there is in the case of the Circuit Judges. Section 1022 provides that 'each Judge shall, within thirty days after the receipt of his commission, and before entering upon the duties of his office, take the oath prescribed by the Constitution of this State. A certificate of having taken such oath shall be indorsed upon his commission.' So that I am now satisfied as a proposition of law that after I receive my commission from the Governor, I am bound to qualify within 30 days thereafter. From the condition of matters I am justified in so doing. To-day or to-morrow the commission may be received, and I am bound to take the seat within thirty days or a new election must be held. With regard to the interest of defendants I gave the longest possible time. Am I to be held responsible for the incongruities of the law, and am I to be held up to contempt and ignomy for doing my duty? I will make no comment on the bar and its duty to assist in these changes in order that the machinery of justice should go on. It now turns out, as I learn from the newspapers, that there is a contest in the Second Congressional District. By virue of the proceedings in the Supreme Court, I learn from the City Register the count is stopped until that matter is adjudicated. I do not desire to take my seat for the purpose of getting the salary and have only had in view what is proper and right as to the interests of the criminals and the community. I want to keep within the law. It is barely possible my commission will not arrive until the 5th, 6th or 7th of December. If the contest case is taken up on the first, it will take a few days for the court to decide. If it does come within the next six or seven days, I will most assuredly take the bench within thirty days from date thereof and will leave to the legislators and law-makers to bear the load of the incongruities of the law."

Judge Laughlin said: "This is all news to me."

Circuit Attorney Harris was seen and was asked:

"What effect will the assumption of the duties by the Judge elect on the 11th prox. have as to incurring new trials and additional expense?"

"I have looked into the various cases in which appeals have been taken and other cases not disposed of, and there are only five or six cases where the appeals have not been perfected and the bills of exceptions agreed upon. In all of these cases appeals have been regularly allowed. The transcripts will be ready on Tuesday of next week, and there is no danger whatever of any new trials or inconvenience to the business of the Criminal Court or additional expense resulting from Judge VanWagoner taking his seat on the 11th of next month."

"Will it facilitate the business for the Judge elect to take possession before January 1?"

"The docket of the court has been set with the view of commencing the trial of the jail cases on the 11th prox., and as there will be about two weeks' working time before the end of the month a large number of these jail cases will in all likelihood be disposed of and the business of the court expedited to that extent. No trials could safely have taken place during the next month if Judge Laughlin had remained upon the bench, because in that case new trials would necessarily have resulted from a change of Judges so soon after the trials. All the cases in which appeals have been asked and granted were tried most of them at least two terms ago. On the whole I think the change of Judges anticipated on the 11th is very beneficial from any point of view that can be taken."

The Criminal Court to-day adjourned until December 4.

Sad Case of Destitution.

Two very sad cases of destitution came under the observation of the health authorities at the City Hall this morning. The first case is that of the Davis family, consisting of the father and six children, and the second is that of a man named Bellew, his wife and two children. Both families are on their way to Montgomery county, Kan., to settle. The Davis family are from Cleveland, and the Bellews from Monroe county, Indiana. They fell in with each other in their journey. Both families crossed the Mississippi from East St. Louis in the ferryboat this morning, and while the boat was still in midstream Mrs. Davis died from an attack of sickness induced by the cold to which she had been exposed. By the direction of the captain of the boat the families came to the City Dispensary. The remains of the unfortunate woman were buried by the city authorities this morning, and the other members of the party were cared for. They were all in a state of the extremest destitution. Their horses were fagged out and famine-stricken, the children were shoeless, hatless and almost naked, and the men, the heads of the party, were dejected and penniless. Health Commissioner Francis was directed by Mayor Ewing to supply their immediate necessities at the expense of the city, and accordingly a good pair of strong shoes were purchased for each member of the party and a substantial meal was provided. Mr. Jesse Arnot volunteered to take care of their horses until to-morrow, when it is expected they will resume their journey towards Kansas. Dispensary Physician Carson states that to the best of his information the unfortunate people are worthy objects for the favorable consideration of the charitably disposed citizens of St. Louis. Contributions of clothing or money for their benefit may be sent to the City Dispensary and will be applied as directed by the donors.

THE FEDERAL COURT.

Leveair, the Letter Carrier, Gets Three Years.

Biffart Punished for Opening a Lady's Letter--A Counterfeiter Sentenced.

Samuel Leveair, the letter-carrier who robbed the mail-box of his adjoining route at the corner of Chouteau and St. Ange avenues, was brought before the United States District Court to-day for trial und sentence. It will be remembered that he was arrested recently by the officers of the Postal Special Agency, directed by Gen. Edgarton. The case was worked up by Emil Becker, of the local service Letter-Carriers' Department, who was the chief witness for the Government to-day. Leveair's plan was to open the letter-boxes on the adjoining route, taking out a few letters before the hour of collection by the regular route carrier. The other boxes in the vicinity were likewise opened in the same way and a portion of the contents removed. The St. Ange avenue box was closely watched by the postal detectives night and day, and shortly after 5 o'clock one morning Leveair was seen to approach the box, open it with his key and remove some of the letters, among which were two decoys containing dollar bills. Leveair was tackled at the chief office when he came in for his delivery and the decoy money was found upon him. He then owned up and was placed in jail to await indictment. This morning ex-Gov. T. C. Eletcher appeared for the prisoner, a man of middle age and respectable appearance, who appeared to feel his position acutely. There was practically no defense, and the jury without leaving the box returned a verdict of guilty. Leveair made an appeal to the court in his own behalf. He acknowledged that he had done wrong, but implored the court to pass a lenient sentence. His previous record he, said, was without a stain. He had served in the army and had been in positions of trust which until now he had not abused. For the sake of his family he hoped that the sentence would be light.

Ex-Gov. Fletcher said that he had known Leveair for many years, and had in fact recommended him for a position in the Postal Department. He was a quiet, well-conducted man of regular habits, and hitherto had borne an excellent character.

Judge Treat said that mail robberies of late had been too numerous for him to deal leniently with a servant of the department who had been caught pilfering. It was necessary to make an example in this case. The sentence would be three years at hard labor in theChester Penitentiary. Ex-Gov. Fletcher as soon as sentence was pronounced stepped to the rear of the court-room and broke the intelligence to the prisoner's wife, who was sitting with her sister. She fell on her sister's neck and sobbed violently. Gov. Fletcher promised Mrs. Leveair to do what he could at Washington to secure executive clemency in her husband's behalf. Leveair be removed to Chester to-night.

A number of witnesses from New York were in attendance to give evidence in the case of Jacob Biffart, who waf charged with appropriating a letter addressed to "Mrs. Biffar," containing $26. The defendant took the letter from the carrier on the route and held on to it and the contents. The jury this morning heard the evidence and at once returned a verdict of guilty. The court sentenced Biffart to three months imprisonment in the City Jail dating from September 11.

William Kaufer was found guilty of failing to erase the stamps from empty cigar boxes. Sentence was deferred in this case.

Aaron W. Brwneer, convicted at the last term of the court for counterfeiting, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in theCity Jail at hard labor, dating from May 15, 1881.

Charles Crawford and Henry Deurst, two lads, were arrested for passing a counterfeit coin, knowing it to be counterfeit, at a bakery. The boys purchased some cakes and received change. In the case of Crawford there was a forfeiture of his recognizance and deputy marshals were dispatched to hunt him up. Deurst's case was taken up, and he was defended by T. P. Dyer. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the court at once pronounced sentence, $1,000 fine and three months' imprisonment in the city jail.

Robert Scobee was brought to town from Adair county in the custody of a deputy marshal, charged with robbing the post-office at Sibley's Point, Mo. He was placed in jail to await a hearing.

The Federal grand jury is expected to return into court this evening the indictments in the Dakota land scrip cases and an indictment against Oby E. Owen, the defaulting teller of the Third National Bank.

SEVERE STORM.

Electric and Atmospheric Disturbances —Snow Falling in the East.

NEW YORK, November 17.—Telegraphic communication has been generally interrupted to-day by the exceptionally severe electric storm. Experienced telegraphers say it was the worst of the kind for many years. The storm extends throughout the United States and eastern provinces of Canada. The cables are hours behind. It is snowing at Buffalo, Albany and Boston. It is several inches deep in the two latter named cities.

ELECTRIC DISTURBANCES.

CHICAGO, November 17.—Officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company here say the electrical disturbances in this country to-day were the most pronounced and widespread experienced for years, if, indeed, they have been paralleled in some respects at any time. An electric storm of the greatest violence ranging in all the territory from New York to a point beyond Omaha, and from Kansas City north to the terminus of the telegraph communication, practically put a stop to telegraph service over the entire area. It first began to be felt about four o'clock this morning, and increased in intensity till 9:45, when communication from every direction was cut off. This electric storm seemed to go in successive negative and positive waves, alternately neutralizing the currents on the wires, or increasing their intensity to such a degree as to burn everything up. The switchboard here has been on fire a dozen times during the forenoon, and half a dozen keys of the instruments were melted by the current, which continued to pass though, the screw was turned up and the point parted to the furthest limits. The duplex and quadruplex wires were rendered entirely useless, and at noon but a single wire of the fifteen between this city and New York was in operation, and it is frequently interrupted. Word was received from Milwaukee that the atmospheric electricity coming in on its wires from the country had such dynamic power as to suffice for keeping an electric lamp burning. All business at the office here is accepted subject to delay. Even the Associated Press report is unavoidably delayed, and up to 1 o'clock this afternoon less than five hundred words have been transmitted.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 17.—It is snowing all along the Hudson and Catskills.

IN ST. LOUIS.

The electric storm, which has been general throughout the country, played havoc with all kinds of business to-day. No business was done on 'Change during most of the morning, because no market reports were received.

The wires seemed to be affected in all parts of the country. The telegraphic news received by the newspapers was very light, Eastern dispatches being quite a rarity. At the Western Union office, corner Second and Olive streets, a great deal of difficulty was experienced. In many cases, the instruments could not be used at all, owing to the effect of the electric atmosphere. Work was considerably delayed until afternoon. It was generally conceded that the storm was more disastrous to the wires than any that has occurred for many years.

The Benoist-Green Depositions.

Depositions in the case of Henry Benoist against Charles Green were held before Notary Renshaw, in the law office of Napton & Davenport, at 2:15 p. m. to-day. Mr. James Murrin, who described himself as "the step-father by marriage of the plaintiff," was put upon the stand and explained at much length the pleasant business and social relations existing between Ghas. Green, Henry Benoist and himself. He stated that he had secured Mr. Green's good efforts on one occasion to induce Henry Benoist to buy a piece of property which failed to sell for what it was mortgaged for. Both Mr. Green and himself believed that if the property was sold at the time the mortgage ended it would be sacrificed. It was consequently bid in at the sale by the family coachman and subsequently transferred to Henry Benoist. The examination was conducted by Judge Valliant for the plaintiff. Mr. Napton, for the plaintiff, introduced a large mass of deeds, transfers and powers of attorney, which will be of use in the subsequent testimony. Mr. Green and his counsel, Judge Madill, were close and attentive listeners to the testimony. There was no one present at the deposition but the lawyers, Mr. Murrin, Mr. Green and the reporters.

At Brigham Young's Grave.

From the Laramie Boomerang.

They say that Brigham Young's grave is looking as bare and desolate as a boulevard now. At first, while her grief was fresh, his widow used to march out there five abreast, and just naturally deluge the grave with scalding tears, and at that time the green grass grew luxuriously, and thepigweed waved in the soft summer air; but since the learned to control her emotions, the humidity of the atmosphere disappeared, and grief's grand irrigation failed to give down. We should learn from this that the man who flatters himself that in marrying a whole precinct during life he is pulling up for the future a large invoice of ungovernable woe is liable to get left. The Prophet's tomb looks to-day like a deserted buffalo wallow, while his widow has dried her tears and is trying to make a mash on the Utah Commission. Such is life in the Far West and such is the fitting resting-place of a red-headed old galvanized Prophet who marries a squint-eyed fly-up-the-creek and afterward gets a special revelation requisiting him to marry a female mass meeting.

MONEY.

Most banks report an undiminished demand for money, and that they have all the calls for funds that they care about letting out. The situation holds firm, though there is no actual stringency observable, and the discount rate is steady at 8 per cent on both call and time loans. The city is still the principal borrower, all the different branches of trade being represented, but the mercantile offerings being perhaps the largest. Country banks were wanting considerable money, and the amount of paper offered on this account was large in the aggregate. New York Exchange continued overplenty and very dull, as there was little demand for it, and it was not quotable at over 75c@$1 discount, representing the selling and buying rates.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Receipts 8,126 brls. Market inclined to dullness, the demand of the day previous having pretty well fallen off. Quotations, however, remain unchanged, but somewhat weak at the following. We quote round lots at depot and on levee: Extra fancy $5@5 10; fancy $4 70@4 80; choice $4 45@4 60; family $4 00@4 10; xxx $3 40@3 50; xx $3 15@3 25; x $2 90@3 00; superfine $2 75@2 85; fine $2 55@2 60; favorite brands 25c higher; patents $5 50@6 50.

Buckwheat Flour—A little easier. New jobs quoted at $7 50@8.

Cornmeal—Quiet and unchanged at $2 85@2 90 on order delivered; grits, pearl meal and hominy at $4 50.

Rye Flour—Slow, demand light. Prices steady at $3 75@4.

Wheat—Receipts 11,490 sks, 33,000 bu. An irregular market, the absence of telegraphic advices restricting future trading and unsettling values. Prices advanced early, but later Chicago came in lower and a weaker feeling prevailed, though firmer again at close at advances of ⅛ for Nov., ¼ for Dec., ⅜ for year and Jan. and ⅛@¼ for Feb. and May over yesterday's close. Grades were in good shipping demand and there was also a milling inquiry for No. 2 red. Latter was better in price, as was No. 2 Mediterranean, and the tone was firm to other grades. No. 2 red cash 94⅝@¾ this and 94¾@⅞ E. side; Nov. 94¾ bid; Dec. 95¼@95½; year 94¾; Jan. 96½@96¾; Feb. 98⅜, and late 98¼ bid; March $1 00 bid; April $1 01½; May $1 03⅛; No. 3 red 90@½ in C., 91 in St. L., 89⅝ in A.; No. 85¼ in C., 87 bid in U. and V.; rejected 83 E. side; No. 2 Mediterranean 97@¼ this and 97½@98 E. side; No. 3 do 92 in E., 91 bid for C.

Corn—Receipts 2,290 sks, 31,600 bu. An unsettled market during the early hours, as there were no advices from others for the guidance of traders, and they consequently could do little; but when telegraphic connection was resumed the tenor was so depressing that prices broke down, though late rallying and advancing, closing ⅜ higher for November and 1-16 better for year, but January ¼@⅜ lower and May ⅛ off from yesterday's close. Grades—No. 2 mixed and white-mixed were higher and sold readily to shorts, but rejected declined, though in feeding and order request. No. 2 mixed cash 67¼@67½ regular and worth 67 at close; Nov. 66½ to 67⅜, closing 67; Dec. 54 bid; year 53⅜ to 54⅝@½, closing 54⅝; Jan. 49¾ to 49, closing at 49⅜ bid; Feb. 49¼ asked; May 51 to 50½, closing at 50⅝ bid; No. 2 white-mixed 67½ regular; rejected do 54½ this side; rejected 54¼@53½ this and 55 E. side; new 54 bid this and 54½ East side; no-grade 51 bid this side.

Oats—Receipts 300 sks 4,500 bu. The market was somewhat firmer at the start, but became easy and declined later on, with more of a disposition shown to sell, closing ⅜c lower for November, ⅛c for December and May and ⅛@¼c for year than at close of yesterday. Grade No. 2 was well sustained in value and met with ready sale, as did rejected, but small offerings restricted trade. No. 2 cash 36⅜ in E., 37¼@37 in St. L.; November 36; December 34⅛ to 33⅞; year 34⅛ to 33⅞; January 32¾ bid; May 34⅞; rejected 36 bid St. L.

Barley—Receipts 79 sks, 7,000 bu. Steady and in demand, with quite a liberal business. We quote: Rejected 40@45; No. 3 50@60; prime to strictly prim 60@67½; choice 70@75; fancy 80@85.

Hay—Receipts 179 tons. Choice stock firm and in demand; low grades slow. This side: Prairie $10 for choice, mixed $10@11 50; timothy $12@12 50 for prime, $14@14 50 for strictly prime, $15@15 50 for choice, $17 for fancy. East track: Mixed $10@11; timothy $12 50@14 25 for prime to choice.

CATTLE—As the week draws to a close business becomes less active. To-day was no exception to this rule, and outside of a few small sales to butchers, retailers and others, there was nothing doing. Buyers were scarce and the few who were present showed but little disposition to operate, they having supplied themselves pretty thoroughly the day previous. Prices were about steady at quotations. All grades of good cattle holding up, but common was weak, and in making sales prices were usually shaded to more or less extent. Sales made at $3 25 for Texans and $3 00 for native cows and heifers. Among the cattle that changed hands late yesterday afternoon, too late for our report, were three lots of heavy native steers averaging from 1,311 lbs to 1,391, which brought $5 22½@5 75 per 100 lbs. We quote:

HOGS—The movement this morning was small, and up to a late hour nothing of any consequence had been done, a few small lots to butchers and shippers being all that was weighed up. The offerings were once more large, the fresh arrivals and what was left of yesterday's supply amounting to fully 100 car loads. There was but one packing house buyer present, and as his house was well supplied, he having purchased between 1,700 and 2,000 head the day previous, was not prepared to go in very extensively. At the time our reporter left the yards outside of the sales mentioned above nothing had been done, and consequently there was nothing upon which to base a market. Indications pointed to a still lower range, especially for light hogs, packing grades also showing more or less weakness, although no decided decline had taken place; but should the weather turn cold, which is not improbable, to judge from present indications, values will be strengthened and the market benefitted to a considerable extent by an increased packing inquiry. We quote: Light to good Yorkers $6@6 35; mixed packing $6 25@6 50; heavy $6 50@6 70; butcher $6 70@6 85, and Philadelphia $6 75@6 90.

SHEEP—Quiet and slow, demand moderate and supply fair. We quote: Medium to fair $3@3 50; good to choice $3 60@4 00; fancy $4 25@4 75; stickers $2 25@2 75; Texans $2 75@4 25, and lambs $3 00@4 00.

The day's business along the shore was quite as good as was anticipated for this season of the year.

GOVERNMENT WORK.

To-day a crew of eighteen men left for Vicksburg and Memphis to work on the river improvements in progress there. Another crew will leave in the early part of next week. The river improvement work at all points will be pushed until cold weather or ice interferes.

THE WOOD-BOATING SEASON.

The wood-boating interest, which cut quite a figure in river business, has closed for the season. The wood-boat Far West, from the Illinois River, was the last to arrive, and her load is being discharged at the foot of North Market street, in the northern part of the city. No estimate can be made of the amount of wood received during the year, until the Harbormaster makes his annual statement January 1. Several crews of men have already left for the islands of the North and South to get out cord-wood for the next season.

SNOWSTORMS in the East have prostrated the telegraph wires, and we are left to-day without our usual quota of general news.

IT is denied that JAY GOULD intends to abolish the Main street depot. He could earn lasting gratitude by improving it a little—especially as to ingress and egress.

SIR STAFFORD NORTHCOTE is very ill and if he should die the Conservative party would lose one of its best leaders; it takes a mighty slow man to lead the Conservative party in England.

MR. HORR, of Michigan, distinguished as a humorist and as a defender of the River and Harbor Bill, will continue in Congress, but it is stated that he will not be as funny as he was, and that he will not defend any very large River and Harbor Bills.

IN New Mexico allusions to "taking the cake" are translated into the liquid accents of Castile by the substitution of the word tortilla, but in spite of the election of BEN BUTLER the aristocracy of Boston still cling to their national dish and refuse to call it frijole.

VERMONT is going to change her system of State taxation, and to raise the whole State revenue by taxing corporations. The whole expense of running the State is about $250,000 and it is expected that the railroads alone will pay $150,000. They now pay about $30,000 per annum.

BEN BUTLER being interviewed in New York as to the chief element which told against the Republicans in the recent election, gave it as his opinion that the strongest count in the indictment was the Star Route business. The Star Route business was, so to speak, unpopular.

THERE are very few men in the country who are bigger men than old GRANT when he comes out and says that he was mistaken in his belief that the sentence passed on FITZJOHN PORTER was just, but GRANT has advanced about a thousand miles ahead of his party in advocating the justice of reparation.

IN January twenty-five States will have Democratic Governors, thirteen of them having been elected at the recent election, when the Republicans carried but two of the fifteen States that elected Governors. The greatest number of Democratic Governors in office at any previous time was in 1878, when there were twenty-four.

WHEN CHARLES LAMB was reproached with coming to the office late he said he made up for it by going away early. In the same way the Supreme Court, if reproached for being hasty in taking up the BROADHEAD-MCLEAN mandamus, suit will probably reply that they will make up for it by being very slow about deciding it.

BEFORE approving the city's grant of a franchise to the Heat and Power Company, it would be worth while to find out whether the city has thereby got itself into a lawsuit with the Gas Company. On the principle that a singed cat dreads the fire one would think that the city would be very unwilling to repeat its litigating experience.

THERE has been an issue of veracity between ROSCOE CONKLING and one TOWNSEND, who undertook to run against PERRY BELMONT in the First New York District as an Independent to be elected by Democratic votes and to be pledged to support the Republicans in Congress, and as we look at Mr. TOWNSEND now we seem to see him through the wrong end of an opera glass.

THE Law Telephone Company in New York is an ideal corporation. Some of the young men in its employ actually had the audacity to ask for an increase of pay from $8 to $10 per week. The company refused to grant the increase and emphasized its refusal by discharging the young man who was "suspected of being the ringleader." As a training-school for VANDERBILTS, the Law Telephone Company of New York is a success.

A RANDALL man who has been prospecting among the surface indications at Washington, announces that RANDALL will step aside and invite Mr. CARLISLE to take the Speakership rather than have any contest likely to disturb the harmony of the party. RANDALL'S friends say that they will make no tariff issue on the Speakership and will be as content with a Free-Trader for Speaker now as they were when KERR was elected and MORRISON, another Free-Trader, was made Chairman of Ways and Means.

A FREE canal in New York means a free canal in Canada. The Welland Ship Canal was made to render the St. Lawrence route from the lakes cheaper than the Erie route, and the Dominion Government never expected the tolls to keep it in repairs and pay interest on its cost. It was built to draw the trade of our Western States through Canada before the developement of Manitoba was thought of. Since the valuable productions of their own Western lands are attracting immigration the Canadians find they builded wiser than they knew, and they now propose to make the Welland as free as the Erie Canal. Mississippi navigation has compelled this free canal movement, and will still further cheapen transportation.

THE KANSAS FLOP.

The fact that a majority of the voters of Kansas really did not intend to prohibit anything but the lowest and most mischievous forms of the liquor traffic when they voted for its total prohibition is a bit of information which has been casually imparted to the readers of this paper at divers times when appearances were rather against its accuracy. But it has been recently verified by the election of an anti-Prohibition Democrat for Governor by a people who were supposed to prefer the devil to a Democrat by a majority of two to one. And this election is a defeat not only of Prohibition, but of the regular Republican organization, with the united railroads of the State at its back, their entire influence having been exerted to re-elect St. John. This sudden collapse of the Prohibition movement in Kansas after its apparently overwhelming success is a surprise to those only who have not had a peep at the monopoly skeleton in the closet of Kansas politics.

Instead of being a lot of cranky fanatics, with no motive power but emotional philanthropy, or a class of Puritanical "tenderfeet" with no personal aim but the elevation of mankind, the gentlemen who have long managed the Republican party in Kansas are veteran jayhawkers in politics, as versatile in sentiment and as apt in wire-working combinations as any other corporation attorneys that were ever billeted upon the politics of a State. From headquarters to the corporals on picket duty they have been in railroad pay or looking to railroad influence for promotion. Some years ago, when Grangerism was booming, they had a hard time holding it in check by waving the bloody shirt and scaring Kansas voters with the skull and cross-bones of the defunct rebellion. As this expedient wore out it became necessary to throw a whisky barrel to the Granger whale and prevail on him to spend his force on that, thus diverting his attention from the monopoly craft that was cruising for his blubber. A Prohibition agitation was started, ostensibly by the women and temperance societies, and was not permitted to languish for want of means to flood every township with Prohibition tracts and Prohibition oratory. Soon it became apparent that for some occult reason the officers, subalterns and rural organs of the Republican party had been conniving at the capture of the organization by the Prohibitionists. When it was too late to prevent this consummation, Republicans who were opposed to it were induced to acquiesce in it and support the Prohibitionized Republican ticket on the ground that it was necessary to "save the party," and could do no harm, because Prohibition never did prohibit. It could suppress saloons where saloons ought not to be, but could not interfere with the bibulous freedom of respectable people.

Thus with the overwhelming power of the Republican party was Prohibition foisted on Kansas. After it had checked immigration and increased rather than diminished the evils of the liquor traffic, ST. JOHN relied on its supposed popularity and on the railroad influence behind it to keep him in the Governor's chair till he could step thence into the U. S. Senate. Then those Republicans who had supported him and tolerated his hobby merely for the sake of the party "rose up and smote him and shed out his bowels to the ground." Prohibition had not proved as harmless as they expected, and they stoned its apostle. He will, however, keep up the agitation, with railroad support, as long as it can be made to serve the purpose of preventing a solid Granger organization in behalf of Anti-Monopoly legislation in Kansas. This is the whole political mission of Prohibition in that State. In two years' trial it has not bleached a single nose for the Republican politicians who have been rallying around ST. JOHN.

PATRIOTISM SLANDERED.

The intelligent foreigner who may have happened to stroll about on election day through the streets of the Ninth District must have been impressed with the spectacle which was there presented, of citizens busily engaged in vindicating the proud prerogative of freemen by depositing ballots, more or less scratched, in favor of the candidates of their choice. We can imagine a younger DE TOCQUEVILLE gazing on this scene, and saying to himself:

"How beautiful is this spectacle, how noble, how grand. The streets are somewhat out of repair, but that does not check the ardor of the citizens. An election is going on, great national issues are at stake and all persons and all classes are moved by one patriotic impulse. Here comes a baggage wagon. The driver must be very poor, for his horse has but one eye and his harness is mostly rope, but he has caught the infection of political enthusiasm and has thrown over his antiquated vehicle a banner with the legend 'Vote for MCLEAN.' This MCLEAN must be a great statesman whom our small European contentions have permitted us to ignore, for, see! here are more baggage wagons and express carts which exhort the citizens to vote for him. For his sake the hackman forgets to ply his trade, and instead of charging the stranger two dollars for a ride from the Union Depot to the Southern Hotel, he will carry the stranger free to the polls, providing he will vote for MCLEAN.

"And these patriots who stand about the polls! How noble is their self-denying zeal! It is early winter and they have not yet bought their ulsters. They will buy them to-morrow. But to-day their threadbare coats are held together by the one surviving button. Their hands, which are full of ballots, are very red, they vary the monotony of standing on one foot by sometimes standing on the other. They are denied their customary refreshment, but they do not falter. If they were to go away some one might come and vote the wrong ticket and they would be filled with remorse. How much higher the political civilization of this country than that of my unhappy France."

It is because a Ninth District election is capable of inspiring such beautiful sentiments that we protest against the brutal and unfeeling tone in which the Globe-Democrat this morning speaks of these men as "bleeders," and attempts to make out that they were mere hirelings inspired by mercenary motives, the motives ranging from two dollars to as much as one hundred dollars. Doubtless there were some unavoidable expenses connected with the election which the candidate liquidated yesterday, but we refuse to believe that there was nothing but the base and sordid considerations of profit beneath the magnificent display of enthusiasm which carried the candidate so far ahead in the race that he did not stop until he reached the Supreme Court. In the language of the patriotic HUBBELL we assert that "great victories are not won in this way," and the Globe-Democrat owes an apology to the Ninth District for misrepresenting Dr. MCLEAN'S pay day in a way which would lead the intelligent foreigner to believe that money, judiciously distributed, was a potent element in swaying the arbitrament of the franchise.

SAUL AMONG THE PROPHETS.

Those who have hitherto looked on JAY GOULD as a mere soulless corporation, ready at any time to water any stock he was connected with, and, even in an emergency, to print certificates limited in number only by the capacity of his press, must have doubted the evidence of their senses on reading in the POST-DISPATCH yesterday that he had brought suit to have the charter of the Mutual Union Telegraph Company vacated and the corporation dissolved, because it had unlawfully issued capital stock in excess of the authority conferred upon it, and because it had issued bonds which did not represent any payment or adequate consideration.

Such is nevertheless the case, and there can be no doubt that Mr. GOULD'S eyes have been opened to the wickedness of watering stock by the recent decision of the courts, which declared that the trifling matter of $13,000,000 of water poured into the stock of the Western Union was illegal. Mr. GOULD was himself, at an earlier period of his career, connected with certain proceedings in the management of the Erie road which had a watery aspect, and no doubt he bitterly regrets that he ever transgressed. But it is to be presumed that before the bar of his conscience those proceedings are now covered by a kindly statute of limitations, and it is probable that even now his chief objection to watered stock is when that stock is running a lively competition with his own. Nevertheless much has been gained when he appears as a plaintiff in such a suit. It would be interesting to hear the arguments of his attorneys against the iniquitous process against which they are arrayed.

THE enterprising manager of a little actress who is to appear in St. Louis very soon, sends us the following in the shape of a newspaper clipping:

> Pretty little Minnie Palmer, during the last engagement in New York, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jordan L. Mott, at their palatial residence on Fifth avenue. The suite of rooms occupied by Minnie was very sumptuous and contained some of the most expensive and rare works of art. The appointments of the room are valued at upwards of $500,000.

We are glad to hear that this histrionic young lady is moving in wealthy circles. It will be in order for St. Louis people to go and see her, now that she has occupied a suite of room with fittings valued at a half-million. And yet STUART ROBSON, the actor, when here last week, stopped at the Southern Hotel, a building that cost something like $1,200,000.

OUR MAIL POUCH.

A State Geological Survey.

ST. LOUIS, November 15, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In yesterday's issue of your enterprising newspaper appears an excellent editorial, calling the attention of the State and of the coming General Assembly to the prime importance and immeasurable value of a persistent and systematic survey of the mineral districts of Missouri, which are almost coextensive with the State, through the agency of the "State Geological Survey," as already established by law. As the question is one of the first interest to myself and to the counties and section immediately around Phelps county, where the institution is located, at Rolla, I desire to thank you very sincerely for the very encouraging and intelligent views presented, which are well calculated to attract attention and bring favorable results. One of the achievements most desirable at the hands of the next General Assembly in the interest of the agricultural, mining and other producing classes is the early re-establishment and vigorous prosecution of the geological survey of the State. This institution, now lying dormant, as it has since 1876, had up to that time, under the management and by the labors of Shumard, Swallow, Broadhead, Williams and other professors and scientists, accomplished immense good for the material interests of Missouri, and surely nothing but the financial crisis and its disasters previous to 1876 could have allowed this great State to suspend a work of such paramount importance. The Legislature of 1876 transferred all the material, instruments, tools, tents, wagons and other property to Rolla, in Phelps county, placing them in charge of the Director of the School of Mines and Metallurgy located there. Under their act Prof. C. P. Williams conducted and accomplished a preliminary survey of considerable portions of Dent, Crawford, Texas and Shannon counties, the report of which valuable work was very ably prepared by him, submitted to and published by the Twenty-ninth General Assembly, in 1877. The appropriation of 1875 being exhausted, and none having since been made by the State, the work of the analysis of metals, ores, soils, etc., has devolved upon the professors and advanced students of the Mining School, that institution, to some extent, supplying a portion of the much needed assistance essential to the intelligent developments of the mineral and other substantial elements of the wealth and greatness of our State. While such States as New Hampshire and Vermont, each with two members of Congress only, sustains a first-class establishment from year to year developing the mineral and agricultural resources and advancing their possibilities, adding wealth to their State, and yet having neither iron, copper, lead, nor zinc, only granite, marble, clays, marls and other fertilizers, our great Commonwealth has allowed her mineralogical economic investigation to be suspended, and foregoes many and large advantaged when ignoring the only means by which so great and valuable benefit to all her people can, by any possibility, be secured. The undersigned would respectfully direct the attention of your influential journal to the many elements of prosperity to be revealed by the systematic prosecution by the State Government of a practical, thorough and exhaustive survey and critical examination of the crust of the earth for the hidden treasures that lie concealed, and in great measure unknown, under its surface. When the importance and magnitude of the inquiry are even partially appreciated by the masses of our people all objections and opposition will be withdrawn, the great work will be carried on indefinitely, and the inestimable results of the teachings of science will inevitably reward the labors and many times repay the outlay necessary to secure the infinite good in store for the inhabitants of Missouri, as I believe her to be the possessor of the most varied, as well as the most abundant, quantities of mineral rescurces and latent wealth of any State in the Union.

Very truly yours,
C. W. STORTS.

ST. LOUIS, November 17, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In 1864 and since the East has had the head of the National Democratic ticket, viz: 1864, Geo. B. McClellan, of Pennsylvania; Geo. H. Pendleton, of Ohio; 1868: Horatio Seymour, of New York; Frank P. Blair, of Missouri; 1872: Horace Greeley of New York; B. Gratz Brown, of Missouri; 1876: Samuel J. Tilden, of New York; Thos. B. Hendricks, of Indiana; 1880: Winfield S. Hancock, of Pennsylvania; Wm. H. English, of Indiana. The last Democratic President was Jas. Buchanan, of Pennsylvania. How would it do for the Democratic party to come West for its leader next time? How does this strike you, with all due respect for your ticket, either right side up or up-side down:

For President:
WM. R. MORRISON,
Of Illinois.
For Vice-President:
GROVER CLEVELAND,
Of New York.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What will be the status, since the recent elections, of the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress? How many Democratic and how many Republican members in each branch? Also, please inform your readers what is expected to be secured by the British Government in the passage of the clôture act.

JACKSON.

[1. As has been repeatedly stated before, the Democrats will have a majority of more than seventy in the next House, while the outlook is that this winter's elections of Senators will give the Republicans a majority not exceeding two in the Senate.

2. The clôture is something like our "previous question," a parliamentary means of putting an end to debate continued merely for the purpose of preventing the majority from passing a bill.—ED. P.-D.]

A Difference of Opinion.

ST. LOUIS, November 17.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You said the other day, in answer to a question, that the Catholic religion was the oldest. Did you mean the Roman Catholic, or the Greek Catholic, or the English Catholic? You also say that it was "claimed" that St. Peter established the Roman Catholic Church. But the last chapter of the Acts of the Apostles shows St. Paul to be the founder of the church in Rome. See xxviii., 22, 23, 30, 31. How are the two statements reconciled?

Car Conductors Who Are Remiss.

ST. LOUIS, November 16, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please state in your next issue who has the management of the Cass Avenue Street Car Company, that we may request him to require the conductors to call out the number of each street when leaving down town after dark. It is impossible for us to know when we come to the "getting off place," as the street lamps do not make the numbers sufficiently plain for us to distinguish what they represent, and sometimes we are carried several blocks farther than we wish to go. The cars are always crowded about 6 o'clock p. m., and when the streets and crossings are ankle deep in mud, to say nothing about a dark and stormy night, we do not care to be taken farther than is necessary for the sake of the ride or even to get our nickel's worth, for we usually get quite enough fun in standing, pushing and squeezing, and wish to be let off as soon as possible. Please push 'em up in your characteristic style, for we are many and have suffered much and often.

The Missouri Ballot Law.

ST. LOUIS, November 16, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

To decide a bet, you will please explain through the columns of your valuable paper whether if on the "regular Democratic election ticket" the name of one candidate has been stricken out and replaced by a Republican, this ticket loses its validity and can be rejected by the judges?

In my opinion any duly registered elector is at liberty to vote for any candidate proposed he may choose, irrespective of whether the same adheres to Republican or Democratic faith.

SUBSCRIBER.

[The law regulating the color, size and style of tickets in this State is intended to prevent fraud and imposition on the voter. To take a regular Democratic ticket and substitute upon it the name of a candidate not sanctioned by the party would be to deceive the average voter, and it would be deemed an illegal ballot. The judges would have a right, under our law, to throw it out.—ED. P.-D.]

ACCIDENTAL KILLING.

Shooting of Herman Bender in a Shooting Gallery Last Night.

J. B. Kappesser, the father of George Kappesser, the young man who accidently shot and killed Herman Bender at the shooting gallery, No. 306 South Fourth street, a little after six o'clock last evening, visited the Four Court's building to see his son who is confined in the calaboose, and also to consult the Coroner. It was decided to hold the inquest at three o'clock this afternoon, shortly after which time it was commenced. Kappesser, Sr., says that his son came running in his house, at No. 418 South Fourth street, about 6:30 o'clock last night, and throwing himself upon a chair, said:

"Oh my God, father, I have shot my best friend down here in the shooting gallery. I have been to get two doctors. Please go and see how he is."

The father says the son abandoned himself to the wildest kind of emotion. He rolled upon the floor, sobbing loudly and tearing his hair. He asked his father if he should not give himself up and the father advised him to do so immediately. The mother, however, did not wish him to do so. Finally the father and son started for the Chestnut Street Station together. As they were leaving the house they were met by a policeman, who accompanied them to the station. The young man states that for the past fourteen years himself and deceased have been very intimate friends, and were together all the time when not working. Last night he was in the shooting gallery in company with Bender. The proprietor, H. P. Otterson, asked him to attend the place while he went to supper, and he consented to do so. Very soon a stranger came in and wanted to shoot. He loaded a rifle for him and the man shot twice, after which he invited him to shoot once. In starting to comply with the invitation he picked up a cartridge, and putting it in the breach of the gun, prepared it for use. Instead of holding the gun in a perpendicular position, Kappesser held it horizontally, and accidentally pointed it in Bender's direction. The triggers of shooting gallery guns are very sensitive to the touch and it is thought by Kappesser that his hand must have come in contact with the trigger, thus prematurely discharging it with the sad result of killing his best friend. The deceased had been employed by Dr. J. H. McLean, and lately had been in the habit of going to the gallery in the evenings to read the papers and study the result of the election of the Doctor. The prisoner feels very badly to-day and even refuses to eat the food which is brought to him by his family. The inquest will probably result in his discharge.

It is said that the employes of the Cass Avenue and Fair Grounds Railroad are getting up a petition to be presented to the managers of the road asking for a reduction in the hours of labor.

Since the inauguration of the strike of the peddlers at the Laclede Iron Works there has been no change in the situation. Both sides seem determined to hold out. Meanwhile over 400 laborers are thrown out of work, at a time when they can least afford to be.

THE FREIGHT BUREAU.

What the Executive Committee of the Merchants Accomplished Last Evening.

The Executive Committee of the Freight Bureau met yesterday afternoon in obedience to the call sent out by Mr. Dwight Tredway, the chairman. The meeting was a short one although the situation was thoroughly discussed. It was decided to prepare a report to Mr. Richardson, the president of the meeting at the St. Louis Club, which would propose a definite plan of organization of the bureau. The report will outline the different topics which properly belong to the subject. It will define the position of the bureau on the bridge arbitraries, on the Southwestern discriminations, on the change of classification in Western freight and on the propriety of establishing St. Louis importing agencies in the different European ports. As far as organization goes, it is estimated that the expenses of the bureau will be $10,000 a year, and to meet this it will be recommended that at least one hundred members be secured who will contribute $100 a year for two years. If more members are secured and it is thought that there will be no trouble in running the membership up to 250, the yearly cost will be proportionally lessened. A two years' guarantee is required because it is believed that the bureau will have to give a two years' guarantee itself to the superintendent whom it will select. This report will be handed in to Mr. Richardson on Monday or Tuesday, and if he approves it it will be printed and sent to every shipper in St. Louis, so as to permit all to come in who may wish to do so. The printed pamphlet will be in circulation by Wednesday next, and it will show whether enough interest in the matter is taken by St. Louis merchants to justify the scheme. It is not contemplated to charter or incorporate the bureau. There will be no liability further than the amount of the subscription, and it is hoped that much of that may be returned. Mr. Richardson will send out the circulars, accompanied in each case by a personal note, and by the end of next week the Freight Bureau will be in a condition to go to work.

There is much discussion as to who will be placed in charge of the bureau. The members had hoped to secure Mr. Seth Frink, the general freight agent of the Missouri Pacific, but it is not believed that he will accept the superintendency. Mr. Soper's name has been mentioned, but it is also said that his other interests will prevent his serving. The bureau will have no difficulty in finding a man, however. They are prepared to pay for the right man, and under the circumstances the right man will doubtless soon appear.

The suit is the result of a loan of $500 from Branch to Ernest Wider in 1879, when Wider was the leading member in the City Council. When Mr. Wider died Branch entered suit against Mrs. Wider, with the result above stated. Branch is president of the Illinois and St. Louis Railroad, and it was expected the defense would attempt to show the money was advanced for political purposes during the turbulent times in East St. Louis, but no such effort was made.

Mr. Geo. C. Olds, general freight agent of the Missouri Pacific, gives notice that hereafter the maximum height from the rails to which flat cars may be loaded is fourteen feet. The bridges and tunnels will not permit the passage of higher objects with safety.

Milton H. Smith, first vice-president; Jos. Montgomery, superintendent; Capt. Lee Howell, general freight agent, and other officials of the L. & N. Road will arrive at East St. Louis by special train this afternoon. They come merely on a tour of inspection—inspection parties are extremely fashionable just now—and will probably not come over into the boss mudhole of the West on this trip. The thing that is just now of most interest to L. & N. people is their new Air Line to Louisville and the East. The party's business is principally in the interest of matters connected with this line. The Air Line, although brand new, is being put into fine condition rapidly, and the intention is to make the Louisville and also the trip to the East the fastest in existence.

The Cairo Short Line is receiving daily 100 to 170 bales of cotton from the Paramore at Cairo. This in the face of the necessity of transfer at Cairo. The incline is completed at Cairo, and the apparatus for hoisting cars is ready for work, but cars that can be hoisted from narrow to standard gauge truck have not been received yet. About 1,000 of such cars are in course of construction for the company and will be ready for work soon, but until they are on hand the shipment of cotton by that line will necessarily be limited. Mr. Paramore, the projector and president of the line, confidently estimates the shipments of cotton by the Narrow Gauge at 350,000 bales per annum from the start. The gap in the road beyond Jonesboro is being rapidly closed up, and even before the active business of the present season is over the management expect to be ready to get some of the benefit of the cotton shipments from that country.

There is hardly any probability that the Main Street Depot will be abolished, or that it can be abolished without considerable financial injury to roads running across the bridge. The depot is used almost entirely by what are called local passengers, and the local traffic on all well regulated roads is the object of continual solicitude, because from it the greatest profits are made. It is a truism amongst all transportation lines that the greatest gains are made from short hauls; hence anything that will encourage or increase the local passenger traffic of the roads leading into St. Louis is an assured source of profit. For this reason the Main Street Depot can not be well done away with. It is safe to say that ninety per cent of the local passengers on the roads crossing the bridge get on and off at the Main Street Depot and thereby save a ten or twelve squares, walk to and from place of business. Business men living out of the city, people coming to the city to trade from the suburban towns, or parties whose business requires much traveling and who are acquainted with the city, almost invariably get on or off at this depot. A C., B. & Q. official said this morning: "We can never tell anything about what kind of a train we are going to haul out until after we leave the Main Street Depot, so great is the travel from that point. And I do not see that the Eastern roads can do without it. The saving to the St. Louis Bridge and Tunnel Company would be very little and not balance the loss they would have in the decreased number of passengers across the bridge. It would be to them a matter of three or four men's wages and the cost of lighting the depot. That's all, and I don't think they will abolish it or that they can afford to do so."

'CHANGE NOTES.

A Dependent Market—A Big Beet—Personals and Notes.

Out of thirty-eight cars new corn received to-day only two cars graded No. 2. A grain inspector said this morning that this kind of weather was very bad for corn, keeping it soft as mush, very near.

Dressed beef shipments to the East from this city are increasing daily. Between fifteen and twenty cars were loading this morning at East St. Louis, and will leave via the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific shortly for New York and Boston.

Mr. Alexander Eccles and his son, Harry Eccles, of Liverpool, were introduced on 'Change by A. A. Paton to-day. The Messrs. Eccles are large cotton factors of Liverpool, and the senior Eccles is a director in the National Steamship Company.

J. G. McGee yesterday sent a message to New York by the Mutual Union, putting it upon the wires at this end at 12:45 o'clock. At 12:57, or in exactly twelve minutes after he had sent his message, he received his answer. Pretty quick work.

A gigantic beet raised in Walnut Valley, Kas., was shown on the floor to-day that was almost a perfect model in shape of a turkey. From a short distance it could be easily mistaken for a fine gobbler. When Jim Post and Billy Hawks saw this beet they tried to buy it so they could remove it from the floor. They couldn't stand the recollections it called up. One party said the seed of this beet must have been frightened by a turkey.

It is predicted by the knowing ones in Chicago that pork will advance to $1 to $1 50 per barrel from lowest point reached. A prominent packer is long a large amount for May in his own name, and on the recent decline different brokers have been buying liberally for him. It is expected he may show his hand at any moment and a sharp advance follow.

On November 15, the regular winter storage rates went into effect in Chicago and will run until April 15. Commenicing on November 15, all grain going into elevators will be charged 1¼c a bushel for first ten days and ¼c a bushel for each subsequent ten pays until the storage amounts to 4c a bushel, when there will be no further charge until April 15. On and after December 1, grain delivered an contract must be on basis of winter storage and can be held without storage charges until April 10, for deliveries on contracts or sales on the Chicage market.

Ab. Glover says he has learned why a certain restaurant not far from the Merchants' Exchange charges so much for its venison steaks. He happened to turn his steak over and saw the trademark of the Goodyear Rubber Company stamped plainly on the other side, and the Jersey lily who hung over his chair and cooled his fevered brow with her balmy breath as she waited upon him told him her boss had to pay a royalty of five per cent to this rubber company upon all sales of these steaks.

Owing to a heavy storm of wind and sleet, the Chicago wires were down this morning, and no messages were received from that market. St. Louis showed how utterly dependent her operations were upon Chicago as a guide to trading, as the option business was at a complete standstill here about all forenoon. Some of the boys went down stairs and played pool; a few hung around the "pit" in an aimless fashion, not knowing whether to buy or sell, and consequently doing next to nothing. Occasionally some one would burst out with an offer to buy year corn or some other option; some one else would offer to sell him about a quarter cent above his bid; then they would both subside. As an operator remarked, "It was perfectly sickening."

THE DECEMBER DOCKET.

Foreshadowing Next Term's Business in the Circuit Court—New Cases.

To-morrow the record of new suits returnable to the approaching December term in the Circuit Court will close. There are three hundred cases entered on the docket up to the present, and probably one hundred more will be filed to-morrow. This does not indicate a very satisfactory condition of business from a lawyer's standpoint, and the character of the new litigation is not important. The divorce docket, as usual, is heavily burdened with cases in which the wives predominate. There are a few damage suits against railroad and other corporations. The following suits were entered this morning.

Abaham, August and Louis Frank vs. W. J. Gutbrod; attachment suit to recover $1,152.

Smith, Bros., & Co., vs. Edward B. Eno; damages for alleged breach of contract, $7,000.

Fox & Corby vs. St. Louis Cement Co.; suit on a note, $285 65.

Charles Arbuckle, John R. Arbuckle, Wm. R. Smith et al. vs. American Meat Company.

J. D. Smith, Sr. and Jr., and M. H. Wagner vs. E. H. Warner; balance of account, $800, for sale of lumber.

Celia Dammann vs. John F. Dammann; petition for divorce.

The Missouri Glass Company has entered suit against the Union Depot Warehouse Company to recover $750 on account of the defendant company's failure to place three freight elevators in a building on Eighth street, leased by the Glass Company for ten years. It is alleged that the Warehouse Company proposed to place the elevators in the building, and that was the chief inducement of the Glass Company to take a long lease of the premises.

War Among Clothing Merchants.

It was rumored on the streets that a suit for damages was about to be brought against the Globe Clothing House, 714 Franklin avenue. Upon inquiry it was found that some clothing merchants, jealous of the growing reputation of this house and wishing to crush it, if possible, were going to bring suit against it, but for what no one seemed to know.

Our reporter called upon the proprietor, and was informed by him that, owing to the backwardness of the fall and winter season, he had closed out for cash at 25 per cent less than manufacturer's cost 5,000 men's and boys' overcoats, which will be offered at such ridiculously low prices as will insure their speedy sale.

IMMENSE variety of overcoats 30 per cent below manufacturers' cost. Bankrupt Clothing Store, 206 North Fifth street, between Pine and Olive.

Jecko's Judgments.

The First District Police Court docket this morning showed thirty-six cases, which were unimportant in most part. Thirteen were cases against Thomas McNeary, the proprietor of the Uhrig's Cave saloon, for keeping an unlicensed dram-shop. The cases on motion were continued until December 2. Wm. Gorley on the 8th of this month went into the disorderly house No. 717 Walnut street, and being full of whisky, commenced to clean out the ranche. Before he had cleared it an officer took him in charge. The case has been continued until to-day, when he was fined $20 and cost.

Charles Buckley & Co., were merchants doing business on Fourth street. Having no licence they were arrested. The charge was dismissed as it was shown that the firm had gone out of business since the prosecution had commenced. The event of the session was when the crier called the name of the Rev. J. J. Crawley, charged with being drunk on the streets and arrested at Fourteenth and Market streets by Officer Fine. The motly audience craned their necks to catch a sight of the minister as he walked out, and opened their ears to hear what he would say explanatory of his offense. He said nothing, but his appearance spoke volumes. His raiment was sadly besmeared with mud licked up, as it were, from the pulverized macadam wherein the gentleman disported himself last night. The City Attorney dismissed the case without prosecution, and the man with bowed head and crestfallen demeanor walked from the Court-house, followed by the eyes of the audience of hoodlums, thieves and fallen women who looked at him, some with pity and some with derision.

THE NEW GAS COMPANY.

Objections to Water Gas Absurd—Not Poisonous.

The article in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH explaining the operations and purposes of the St. Louis Heat and Power Furnishing Company has excited widespread interest. The announcement that a rival had stepped into the field to contest with the St. Louis and Laclede Gaslight Companies was one which naturally occasioned general comment. Of course the gas companies are to be relied upon to give their youthful competitor a very warm fight. The first blow aimed at the new company arises in the shape of a pamphlet emanating from an unknown source, and entitled "Water Gas a Dangerous Poison." The pamphlet has been circulated among merchants and householders for several days past, and a perusal of its pages and the induction from them that the pamphlet was an attack upon the St. Louis Heat and Power Furnishing Company gave a POST-DISATCH reporter the cue which led to the article of yesterday. The pamphlet starts out with the following statement:

"The recent attempt to introduce water-gas as an illuminating agent renders the above question one of vital interest to every person using gas, either for lighting, heating or cooking. Water-gas is obtained by passing steam over and through anthracite coal, and as the steam is decomposed by the ignited carbon, the hydrogen is set free and carbonic oxide produced, and for illumination enriched with crude oils, naptha, etc.

"The only poisonous constituent of any illuminating gas is its 'carbonic oxide,'" as the following quotations from standard authorities abundantly prove. The gas containing, therefore, the larger percentage of this insidious poison is the more dangerous to use. From the best authorities the following is the analysis of water-gas and the ordinary coal-gas, the latter safely and ordinarily used in Brooklyn for upwards of twenty-five years.

WATER GAS.		COAL GAS.
Carbonic Acid	.371	Carbonic Acid	1.950
Oxygen	1.021	Oxygen	.139
Olefines	17.363	Olefines	5.504
Carbonic Oxide	27.8?3	Carbonic Oxide	4.157
Hydrogen	23.487	Hydrogen	45.848
Marsh gas	24.612	Marsh gas	40.948
Nitrogen	5.235	Nitrogen	1.445
	99.982		100.000

"It will be seen from the above that water-gas contains nearly seven times as much carbonate oxide (a rank poison) as ordinary coal gas, and is seven times as dangerous to use. Quite recently strenuous efforts have been put forth to induce the use of naptha water gas as an agent for illumination, but so great has been the popular dissatisfaction in this country and abroad that laws have been passed prohibiting its manufacture and sale. Both the States of Massachusetts and New Jersey, after the most thorough and patient investigation, have recently enacted laws prohibiting the manufacture and sale of this kind of gas. Selligul, in 1841, obtained permission to use the gas in the towns of Dijon, Strasburg, Antwerp and two of the faubourgs of Paris and Lyons. At Strasburg an accident occurred which put a stop to its use. The gas escaped from the pipes into a baker's shop and was fatal to several persons, and not long after an aeronaut named Decaurt incautiously used the gas for inflating his balloon; he was made insensible in the car, and those who approached the balloon to give him assistance fainted and fell likewise."

In support of the statement to the effect that carbonic oxide, the predominating ingredient of water gas, is a rank poison, the pamphlet quotes eminent chemical authorities.

The pamphlet also contains a list of casualties the result of the inhalation of water gas. If the statements of the pamphlet were indeed true the introduction of water gas into dwellings for any purpose whatever, whether of heating or illuminating, would certainly organize such an epidemic as St. Louis has never before seen. That they are not true, though based upon a plausible appearance of truth, is the opinion of the best informed scientists.

MR. THOMAS HOWARD,

one of the original incorporators of the St. Louis Heat and Power Furnishing Company, and still one of its largest stockholders, laughed heartily when requested this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter to give his opinion.

"I think Ben Archer, the president of our company, circulated that pamphlet. Yes, you may say that he did."

"What would be his object in doing so?"

"Oh, he wants to advertise our company."

Mr. Lowe, a brother of the inventor of the Lowe process for making water gas, stated that water gas was no more dangerous than coal gas.

"Water gas," he said, "is in use in a great many cases, in Baltimore, New York, Patterson, N. J., and other places, and it is a fact that several of the old gas companies in this country are furnishing water gas to their customers, instead of coal gas. They don't tell everybody so, but it is a fact all the same. Any gas is dangerous if you inhale it, but water gas is not more so than coal gas."

Cady's Court.

In the Court of Criminal Correction today only two minor cases were disposed of, the balance of the docket being continued. William Sanders, a well known Chicago and eastern shop-lifter, was arraigned for attempting to lift some goods at Van Raalte's pawn-shop, on Fourth street, a few days ago. He was sent to the City Jail for twenty days.

The cases against John Drew and William Campbell, both colored, charged with the larceny of a lot of clothing and a promissory note for $200 belonging to N. A. Taylor, another negro, were examined. It was proved that Drew took the clothes and also the note. It was objected by the prisoner's lawyer that he was not responsible for the theft of the note, because he could neither read or write, consequently knew the value of it only by hearsay. The point was well taken and Drew was sentenced to only six months in the Work-house for petty larceny. Campbell was discharged.

How She Caught Him.

From the New York Tribune.

Night in St. Louis.

Seated in the parlor of her father's magnificent residence, Lurline Loosehair allowed her taper fingers to wander idly over the keys of the piano, and, obedient to her delicate touch, there floated forth upon the air the strains of that beautiful miserere, "Since Papa Tore His Pants." And as she sat there, absorbed in the sad reflections to which the music gave rise, the door opened softly, and Berwyck Hetherington entered the room. Lurline, all the senses of her passionate nature absorbed in the music, continued to play, not knowing that the man she loved, and to win whose pocketbook in return she would have hustled around with dread earnestness, was standing by her side. But at last Berwyck placed his hand gently on her shoulder, and by that indefinable sense that tells us of a human presence, although we see it not, she knew that somebody was around. Turning quickly she saw Mr. Hetherington.

"I did not know you were here," she said, a blush flooding the face that such a little time ago was pale and calm, "or I should not have played so confidently."

"Can you not favor me with something more?" he asked.

The blush grows deeper and more vivid now, and the drooping eyes are moist with tears. But in an instant she recovers her self-possession, and looks at him in the frank, honest way in which Cincinnati girls ask for more pie.

"I cannot play any other piece," she says, half sadly, half defiantly.

"Are you sure of this, Lurline?" Berwyck asks, bending over her in a loving way. "Think well before you speak," he continues, "for on your answer may depend the future happiness of two young lives."

"I am quite sure," she says.

"Then you must be my wife." And as he speaks these words Berwyck Hetherington's face lights up with a rapturous, Schuyler Colfax smile. "Do you love me?" he asks.

For answer, she puts her arms around his neck, kisses him coldly behind the left ear, and then a great silence falls upon them.

Presently Berwyck rises to go. "You will come again to-morrow evening?" she asks.

"Yes," he replies, "you may tie the dog at eight."

"And you will not regret your choice?"

"Never," he says, in clear steady tones. "I have spent the best years of my life looking for a girl who could play only one tune on the piano."

THE OSTRICH WALTZ.

An Odd Sight in Central Park Deer Paddock—How to Pluck an Ostrich.

From the New York Sun.

Mr. J. Protheroe, the young Englishman who has in Central Park a herd of 22 ostriches recently imported from Buenos Ayres for breeding in America, went yesterday morning with his herdsman, an ebon Cape Towner, named Johnson, and a Sun reporter, to the deer hut in which the birds are confined. When Johnson opened the door he was greeted by a series of sounds suggestive of the noise made by a fog horn.

"That's what the Dutch natives of Cape Town call 'bromming,'" said Mr. Protheroe. "It expresses the same feeling with an ostrich that cooing does with a dove. I'll show you how we pluck an ostrich. Johnson, bring the stocking."

The dark herder, whom the birds regarded with mild-eyed affection, produced a long white stocking. He caught one of the birds by its neck, and inserted the head and neck in the stocking. The result irresistibly recalled the pictures of Bernhardt in Bernhardt gloves. The blinded bird exhibited some nervousness.

"This herd have been so long in confinement," said Mr. Protheroe, "that they are comparatively gentle when the stocking is pulled over their necks. They fight and kick vigorously sometimes when they have been accustomed to the liberty of a large farm."

Johnson led the bird up to a side of the hut, against which with one hand he held its neck. He held up a wing with the other hand, while Mr. Protheroe held the other wing, and with a pair of shears clipped off a white feather one inch from the flesh under the wing. "It would not do," continued Mr. Protheroe, "to pull these feathers out. Inflammation might set in. We pull out the tail feathers and those on the outside of the wings. One month after we cut off the large feathers under the wing new feathers push out the old quills."

While Mr. Protheroe was speaking the long-necked birds were making friends with the reporter. One of them seized his shirt-collar, but was frusted by Johnson in his attempt to swallow it. Another tried to gulp down the reporter's cane, but finding a stiff neck the result, desisted.

"If you will stand behind me," said the young Englishman, "we will open the door and let the birds out for their morning airing. They are dangerous when let at liberty."

Johnson pushed back the sliding door of the hut. "Now," continued Mr. Protheroe, "you will see something that you have not had the privilege of seeing in America before." Johnson gave a low, peculiar whistle, resembling somewhat the "bromming" of the birds as he walked out of the door into the grassy enclosure. The ungainly bipeds rushed after him pell-mell. Their necks were craned out and their mouths were wide open. They ran about the enclosure in a breakneck fashion for several minutes, occasionally bumping into one another. Then they began flapping their wings and waltzing. It was a veritable waltz, and is so termed by ostrich farmers. The birds turn rapidly round and round, dipping their necks and swaying their bodies at each turn. A rhythm that could be set to music pervades their motions.

"It would be unsafe to go among them now, unless, like Johnson, you were familiar with them," said Mr. Protheroe. Two of the male ostriches began to fight at this point. They faced each other with distended mouths, flapping wings, and glaring eyes. Then they began a pecking match, which was followed by some high kicking, forward, backward, and sidewise. "While they are too tough to be much hurt by their own kicks, they have been known to break the arms and legs of men by them," said Mr. Protheroe. The birds will be taken to California soon. Mr. Protheroe thinks his ostrich farming in America will be entirely successful.

A Specimen Tariff Absurdity.

"Gath" in Cincinnati Enquirer.

A case was brought to my attention some time ago where a party had been making corsets out of some wild beast's horn from the East Indies, and a benignant Government had given him a duty, on which he made his $500,000 or more. It then occurred to him that he might use old cow-horns on the plains in place of the special horn heretofore used for splints in the corset. So our friend rushes before the Tariff Commission and asked that the ibex-horn be shut out by a duty that he might make an inferior article out of cow-horns. So this person had first got his ibex-horns free and made one fortune, and now he proposes to shut it out and make another. Such is one of the absurdities of the tariff; and the Committee of Ways and Means allows men to strip the country of fortunes by such turns as this, and perhaps leave it forever to spend their money in Europe, whence they came.

THE sale by Adams and Southern Express Companies of unclaimed express packages is announced to take place to-morrow (18th) at the auction house of Haggerty & Dewes, 411 and 413 North Fifth.

A Texas Congressman.

From the Atlanta Post-Appeal (Ind.)

Very few Democrats will regret the election of Gen. Tom Ochiltree as an Independent from the Seventh Texas District. Tom has received a national reputation as the most skillful artist in the fine art of frescoing facts that ever delighted and dazzled the country. In Congress he will have a wide field for the exercises of his peculiar talent, and he is one of the few men who know how to make the most of an opportunity. As an instance of Ochiltree's devotion to his specialty it is related that on a certain occasion he undertook to correspond for a newspaper. The editor wrote him a postal-card as follows: "Send on the facts and we will furnish the embellishments." In the face of this positive request Tom promptly replied: "For God's sake let me furnish the embellishments—you can get up the facts somehow or other in your office."

None but those who have suffered from dyspepsia and its attendant evils can describe the feelings of a victim of this dreadful disease. Unable to digest even the simplest food, having no appetite whatever, passing sleepless nights and miserable days, gradually growing weaker day by day, general debility ensues, and life becomes a burden to the sufferer. Under these conditions a remedy for these ills is unquestionably a boon to mankind. Such a remedy will be found in BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which has never failed, if taken according to instructions, to relieve the most obstinate case of dyspepsia, indigestion or general debility.

Thousands of business men are suffering in the same way. Some, by indomitable will, still keep on, hoping that the time will soon come when they can rest; but in most cases, when that time comes they are either so worn out that life is almost a burden and rest comes too late for enjoyment, or they are so broken down that death claims them as its victim.

In corroboration of this statement, there are appended statements of some of our own neighbors who have been benefited by its use:

Mrs. W. Scheuermann, 2433 Mullanphy St., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters helped me wonderfully in an attack of dyspepsia accompanied by dizziness and headache. My husband has taken it also and found it a good strengthening medicine."

Mr. Chas. A. Wilson, Twenty-first and O'Fallon Sts., says: "I have been taking Brown's Iron Bitters for diseased stomach, dyspepsia, indigestion and dizziness in the head, and have been greatly relieved."

Mrs. W. Turpin, 817 Chambers St., says: "My husband is using Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness and headache with satisfactory results."

Mrs. J. H. B. Smith, 1823 Warren St., says: "I have suffered with dyspepsia several months, when two bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters made a complete cure."

Mrs. Lizzie Wheeler, 2116 Broadway, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters gave me great relief from dyspepsia."

Mr. Henry Heinrich, of Main St., Carondelet, says: "I was a sufferer from indigestion, when I used Brown's Iron Bitters and found it cured me. It is a splendid tonic medicine."

Mr. John Barnickle, 1316 South Ninth St., says: "My wife has taken several bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia and it has entirely cured her."

Mr. Wm. A. Gaulden, 1905 Biddle St., says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters for vertigo, pain in my head, etc., arising from dyspepsia, and I have been benefited to a considerable extent."

Henry Hallam, 3033 South Seventh St., says: "I have used two bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters, and it has afforded me great relief from dyspepsia. I also find it to be a good blood purifier and appetizer."

Mr. A. Koenig, 427 Soulard St., says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia, and find it just what it is represented to be."

J. C. Lange, East St. Louis, Ill., says: "Two bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of indigestion."

Herman Saxemeyer, 1201 South Eighth St., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters has entirely cured me of dyspepsia."

Mr. H. Tiedemann, 1504 Mullanphy St., says: "I have suffered for two years with a diseased stomach and dyspepsia. I became very weak and debilitated and could not keep anything on my stomach. After taking several bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters I feel like another man."

Mr. A. V. Vennes, of St. Joseph, says that after taking two bottles of Brown's Iron Bitters he was able to eat the first hearty meal in four years, and is now well and hearty.

Brown's Iron Bitters is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, malaria, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. A tablespoonful after meals will remove all dyspeptic symptoms, such as tasting the food, belching, heat in the stomach, heartburn, liver complaint, etc.

URSULE'S APPLE SPRIG.

A Little French Story with a Wedding for an Ending.

From a Paris Letter.

In some parts of France marriageable girls are accustomed to pluck, as they return from midnight mass on Christmas Eve, a sprig of apple tree, which they put in a vial full of water; the vial is hung in their bed-chamber in front of the window; if one bud blooms before Easter the mistress is sure to be married before the year ends. Among the servants of a chateau near Alencon was a chambermaid from Brittany. She was gentle, good-natured, quiet, pious—an excellent creature every way, but she was hunchbacked Her name was Ursule. Taking advantage of the dark night she, too, plucked a sprig of apple tree—sure that nobody saw her. She was mistaken. A fellow-servant saw her, and made the servants' hall ring with peals of laughter at poor Ursule's expense. Still, they kept the secret among themselves. They all agreed to play a trick on poor Ursule. Easter Eve one of the journeymen gardners removed the old sprig of apple tree from the vial in Ursule's bed-chamber and put in its place a sprig covered with blossoms.

When Ursule went into the bed-chamber she could not believe her eyes. She returned to the servants' hall; her face was radiant with delight as she showed her trophy; the laughter, jeers, hootings of her comrades revealed the trick put on her. She stood dumb, confounding, trembling, scarcely able to restrain her tears. Just at this moment the mistress entered the servants' hall. The mistress said, "Ursule, the apple tree sprig may be trusted, believe it; you will be married before Christmas next. You are a virtuous girl; I am sure you will make a virtuous wife. All you want to get a husband with is money; the money wanted I will give you." As she spoke the mistress twined a 1,000-franc bank note around the sprig and returned it to Ursule. A fortnight afterward the journeyman gardner who had put the trick on her, asked her in marriage, but she refused him (at which he was greatly jeered) and married another.

Her Summer at the Mountains.

From the Lawrence American.

It has been ascertained that a lady of this city, who lives in a house with luxurious appointments, endured the following experience to be "out of town" during the summer months. She slept, or perhaps it would be more truthful to say she passed her nights on a cotton mattress underneath which was what was called "a spring bed," and every time she attempted to turn over several coils of iron wire would creak and groan in a most unearthly manner and elbow their way into her shoulder blades and ribs most unexpectedly and painfully. She was obliged to hang her entire wardrobe in her sleeping room, protected from the dust by a frail curtain made of a sheet. As she slept in a room opening upon the lower piazza she kept both windows closed duirng the night for fear of burglars, and so nearly suffocated from the heat. There were no blinds to these windows, the piazza roof being considered a sufficient protection from the sun, and the window shades were of a peculiar patent spring that was liable to start off at any moment, the curtain ascended with a tremendous snap to the ceiling, keeping the occupant of the room in constant terror as to the time it would select for its upward flight. For lavatory purposes the room was furnished with a wash bowl and pitcher, the latter holding about a quart of the hardest of hard water, and yet this much-enduring female speaks of her "summer at the mountains" as of a green oasis in the desert of her life.

The Aurora and Sun Spots.

From the New York Sun.

The cold wave from the West, of whose approach we have heard during the last two or three days, was reported yesterday morning to have reached Buffalo, and the storm that struck this city at nightfall was probably its forerunner. A splendid auroral display which was witnessed yesterday morning may be regarded, according to some meteorolgical theories, as also indicating a change of weather. The display in the interior of the State is said to have been magnificent. In this city it was preceded by a curious arrangement of dark lines of clouds apparently meeting in the north and spreading out like the ribs of a fan, between which the auroral light was visible. A glance at the sun with a telescope yesterday showed a tremendous spot just coming around the eastern edge, with a divided and ragged nucleus, giving evidence of great disturbance. This spot appears to be identical with one which passed around the western edge of the sun about the first of the present month, but it has evidently undergone vast changes. If a coincidence can be shown between the outbreak of a new forces in this spot and the appearance of the auroral light in our sky, it will only add another to the many similar coincidences which have been observed, and of which notable instances occurred last spring and summer.

A LOVER'S FOND REPROACHES.

They tell me thou hast others loved—
That others' arms have pressed thee.
That others' ears have drunk thy vows,
And others' lips caress'd thee;
That at the shrine where I have lain
The love deem'd only ours,
Others before had brought their troth
To fade like summer's flowers!

I fain had hoped that in thy breast
When close to mine I'd told thee,
A new-born passion glow'd to hear
The words of love I told thee;
I fain had hoped that first for me
The heart I press'd was beating,
That girlhood's fancies were like snow—
As stainless and as fleeting!

The spring's first blossoms let the bees
Sip with the opening hours!
I'd rather wait to drink the sweets
Of summer's full-blown flowers!
Thy youthful passions I'd believe,
Lest greater woe befel me,
Know not the honey of true love,
In spite of all they tell me.

JOHN G. CARLISLE.

The Maiden Speech of the Man who Will Be the Next Speaker.

From the Louisville (Ky.) Commercial.

"John G. Carlisle is one of the greatest men in the country," said a prominent Kentucky politician last night. "I have known him since he was a boy, and have watched his course with a great deal of interest. The first time I met him he was a country boy on a farm just back of Covington. He was a pale, studious boy, working hard all day on the farm and studying and reading by night. I visited his family several times and I always found John sitting off in one corner with a big book in his hand. He was a quiet kind of a fellow, speaking only when spoken to. When he was about 17 years old he started to teach school. He was rather shy at first, but in a few weeks his pupils all adored him. He taught in a little out-of-the-way school-house, and the story goes that he fell desperately in love with a young lady who lived in Covington, and was out near where he taught visiting relatives. I don't know why or how his courting ended, but the lady in question is now the mother of four children, and is a very fat, prosy-looking married woman. She lives within a stone's throw of Carlisle, at Covington. I was practicing law in the Covington district, and one of my friends was telling that young Carlisle was going to make a speech in the Court-house that day on some land title. Both of us were friends of his family, and we took considerable interest in him. We determined to go and hear him make his maiden speech.

"The case was of a dry, hard, knotty character, full of legal subtility, and I thought to myself: 'Johnny, old boy, you're in for a failure to-day.' There was hardly any one in the court-room except lawyers, and, considering the case and its audience, it must have been a trying maiden effort. I can see Carlisle now as he stood up in the court-room with a copy of the Revised Statutes in his hand. He had that same weary, studious look in his eyes, that same cold, passionless expression on his pale face that he has to-day. Without the least degree of nervousness, in a plain, calm, quiet way, he began his speech. You could see that he had mastered every detail, and the lawyers, as they grew more and more interested, moved their bodies forward and hung on his words. I have no hesitation in saying that it was the best speech of the kind ever made in the Covington Court-house. Without telling an anecdote or cracking a joke, there was something so winning in his voice and in his manners that the interest never flagged. When he had finished the lawyers all crowded around him, the Judge shook him warmly by the hand, and Tom Jones, who happened to be in the court-room, told him he had a great future before him. From that day his fortune was made. Practice poured in on him, and in two years he was doing more business than any lawyer in that judicial district. I have heard him many times since then, and he has never changed his style or his manner. He has a remarkably sweet voice, and while I never heard him tell an anecdote, privately or publicly, there is a something about the man that is inexpressibly winning. He made an argument before the Court of Appeals in a murder case a few years ago, and spoke for nearly two hours. When he concluded Judge Cofer asked the other Judges to adjourn for the day. When asked by one of the lawyers—who had a case set for that day—why he adjourned court after Carlisle's speech, the old Judge answered crisply: 'I hated to hear a good thing spoiled, as would be the case if any other man had followed him.'

"Carlisle's wife had a wonderful influence over him, and it was due to her that he did not go the way of too many young politicians who came to Frankfort and got a taste of the liquor that is sold there."

Life of the Phongyee Priests.

From the London Graphic.

A very interesting series of articles has lately been published in the Rangoon Gazette on "Life of a Phongbee Kyoung," or "Hpongyee Kyoung" for I notice it is as often spelled one way as the other. A "Phongyee Kyoung" (let us take the easiest form) is a monastery to which the priests of Buddha, who have foresworn the pomps and vanities of eating rice and being constantly baked by a hot sun, retire "to spend their days unaffected by the ordinary cares of life, seeking perfection in order to obtain its reward—annihilation." The phongyee is thus presented to us: "A man, with shaven head and clean but ugly face, sits in an inner room, rosary in hand, cross-legged and chewing betel-nut—an occupation the loss of which would in most cases leave him without employment. The clothes he wears consist of three pieces of yellow cloth, the yellow color being a symbol of mourning and humility. The first piece is fastened to his waist by a band and hangs down close to the ankles. The other two pieces serve as cloaks, the smaller one being thrown over the left shoulder and folded round the body several times. The large one is worn in very much the same fashion, but more loosely, and is allowed to hang down to the ankles. The right shoulder is left bare. An expression of impenetrable dullness overspreads the phongyee's face, and an insipid smile plays on his lips. On beholding him one is reminded of a cow lying under some shady tree on a hot summer day and chewing its cud. He casts a vacant glance at the women as they put down their food; but, although gratified at the prospect of a dainty meal, it would be extremely derogatory on his part to express his thanks."

These phongyees have high jinks occasionally. The description of the shampooing process in which they indulge is too good to be lost. Mark Twain would go into ecstacies over it. "The service over, the younger boys generally go to bed, and the priests and Thamanays go to their studies. The head priest, or phongyee, however, frequently requires to be shampooed and scratched, and some three or four young recluses remain behind to perform the virtuous office, for which they shall surely not go unrewarded in the next state of their existence. Habit has accustomed the priest to a more vigorous form of shampooing than that to which ordinary people are accustomed. He lies stomach downward, and a boy walks up and down his legs, at the same time pressing heavily with the feet. The remainder vie with each other in digging their elbows into his back. Under this delightful sensation the priest's tongue is loosened, and he repeats story after story." If walking on a man's legs will not loosen his tongue, it is time to send for the notary.

Stationery of the Ancients.

Many were the expedients resorted to by the early scribes for the supply of writing materials. There was no scibbling paper whereon to jot down trivial memoranda or accounts, but the heaps of broken pots and crockery of all sorts, which are so abundant in all eastern towns, prove the first suggestion for such China tablets and slates as we now use, and bits of smooth stone or tiles were constantly used for this purpose and remain to this day. Fragments of ancient tiles thus scribbled on have been found in many places. The island of Elephantine, on the Nile, is said to have furnished more than 100 specimens of these memoranda, which are now in various museums. One of these is a soldier's leave of absence, scribbled on a fragment of an old vase. Still quainter were the writing materials of the ancient Arabs, who, before the time of Mohammed, used to carve their annals on the shoulder-blades of sheep. These "sheep-bone chronicles" were strung together and thus preserved. After a while sheep's bones were replaced by sheep's skin, and the manufacture of parchment was brought to such perfection as to place it among the refinements of art. We hear of vellums that were tinted yellow, others white; others were dyed of a rich purple, and the writing thereon was in golden ink, with golden borders and many colored decorations. These precious manuscripts were anointed with the oil of cedar to preserve them from moths. Still more precious was the silky paper of the Persians, powdered with gold and silver dust, whereon were painted rare illuminations, while the book was perfumed with ottar of roses or essence of sandal-wood. Of the demand for writing material one may form some faint notion from the vast manuscript libraries of which records have been preserved, as having been collected by the caliphs both of the East and West, the former in Bagdad, the latter in Andalusia, where there are eighty great public libraries, besides that vast one at Cordova. We also hear of private libraries, such as that of a physician who declined an invitation from the Sultan of Bokhara because the carriage of his books would have required 400 camels.

Valuable and Convenient.—Brown's Bronchial Troches are widely known as an admirable remedy for bronchitis, hoarseness, coughs and other troubles of the throat and lungs. They contain no hurtful ingredients, but may at all times be used with safety. Sold only in boxes. Price 25 cents.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting, perhaps, from a trifling and unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has well proved its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the Pectoral a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your Cherry Pectoral saved me. Horace Fairbrother."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. Crane."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Joseph Walden."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

CURE YOURSELF.

Bohannan's "Vegetable Curative" cures all Nervous Diseases, Mental and Physical Weakness, General Debility, Kidney Complaints, Organic Weakness, or any of the train of evils arising from Indiscretions, Over Brain Work, OR ANY OTHER CAUSE, which often terminate in Consumption or Insanity. Many men, from the effects of Youthful Imprudence, have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce symptoms of nearly every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure as promptly as BOHANNAN'S VEGETABLE CURATIVE.

It has been used by old Dr. Bohannan in his private practice for over thirty years, has never failed in curing even the Worst Cases. The patient gains strength and elasticity of spirits at once, as it acts directly on the parts affected as a soothing and healing tonic and anodyne, imparting power and tone and restoring them to their natural state, the same as if never affected. The ingredients are simple productions of nature—barks, roots, herbs, etc., and are a specific for the above diseases. Permanently curing most cases in from two to seven weeks time.

SADDLES AND HARNESS.

A Business in Which St. Louis Surpasses all Other Cities.

The Whole Union and Several Foreign Lands Supplied From This City--How the Trade Has Grown.

Another line of business in which St. Louis stands head and shoulders above all other cities in the Union, or, for the matter of that, in the world, is the manufacture of saddlery. Unlike the tobacco and cotton and some other branches of trade in which the city's preëminence is a matter of recent accomplishment, the saddlery business of St. Louis is the result of a steady growth. Situated so as to command the trade of the South and Southwestern States and Territories, where horseback riding is in common vogue, the bulk of the business in St. Louis was for many years the manufacture and sale of the several varieties of the Mexican saddle which have resulted from local adaptations of that comfortable article. The making of harness was left largely in the hands of the Eastern manufactures, but the fuller development of the local industry has of late placed the St. Louis saddlers in a position to compete with them, and to-day the product of this city's saddleries is sent to all parts of the country, and a very big hole has been cut in a trade which the East used only a few years ago to look upon as their monopoly. When the vast extent of country and the varied character of its population are taken into consideration, it can readily be understood that the sample-room of a St. Louis saddlery firm will present a remarkable variety of wares; yet the statement would seem almost incredible that in that department of one of the largest houses on North Fifth street there are on exhibition not less than 200 saddles, no two of which are alike. Here are to be seen different kinds of the plain but comfortable Somerset or English saddles; almost innumerable varieties of the California saddle, far more cumbrous and ornate, and withal more productive of easy riding than the European pattern; ladies' saddles of all shapes and colors; Mexican saddles with a variety of fantastic and jingling paraphernalia attached, and even specimens of the article which finds favor with the herdsmen of the Llanos of South America. It is safe to say that there is neither a United States, a Mexican nor a South America citizen who would not be able to find there just the kind of saddle which is used in his part of the world, and which, at very short notice, could be reproduced in any quantity desirable. Fashion rules in saddles and harness just as it does in dress, and it is only by constant watching of the changes which are going on in equine gear that the manufacturers are able to keep pace with the varying whims of their purchases. "Sometimes," said a manufacturer yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "it is a new strap which has been added, or the readjustment of an old one, or even a change of color while the shape is left unaltered, but we have to follow the change of taste, and to at once adapt our goods to it. Our twelve travelers are constantly on the look-out for such variations, and advise us of them as soon as the popularity of the new idea seems to be firmly established. "There is no doubt that to this readiness to supply exactly the article which suits the purchaser's taste, together with the invasion of all fields which seem to promise trade, is due the success which now belongs to the business in this city. Trade with Mexico is only a recent possibility, but in order to reap the full advantages of it the St. Louis saddler sent off to the city of Mexico and secured a specimen of the saddle and bridle which find favor among the Dons of the sister republic. Even among its congeners, the California saddles, the imported article presents quite a unique appearance. The wooden tree covered with raw-hide, the saddle-bags resplendent with impressed ornamentation of much more intricate design than that employed on the American product and provided with buckskin laces, the stirrups entirely covered with a boot which looks awkward but is undoubtedly comfortable, combine to produce a very striking effect, which is enhanced when the bridle is examined, with its light iron-work embellishments, its straps of pleated raw-hide and its reins of horse-hair. The saddle and bridle cost the firm $75, but they have managed to produce exact counterparts of it, which they are now exporting to Mexico, where they are sold at lower prices than the domestic article.

A careless glance at the California saddles, under which name are included a l those articles in use in the West and Southwest which are patterned after the Mexican saddle, would lead one to jump to the conclusion that they were all alike, but a closer inspection shows that each has its distinctive and indispensable peculiarities of shape, material or ornamentation. Their weight is extraordinary. One very heavy one, intended for the California trade, weighed over thirty pounds and was almost large enough to conceal the form of an ordinary-sized Broncho pony.

Apropos of these somewhat outlandish specimens of saddlery, it may be stated that all sorts of what are known as "frontier goods" are made in this city. The Texas cowboy and Arizonia rustler pride theselves, next to their pistols and the dexterity with which they use them, upon their leather overhauls, which, in riding, preserve them from rude contact with brambles and briars. These are made in different styles from the common variety in duck oil-cloth or the cheapest kind of leather, and with only a faint attempt at fringes down the side, up to the pair made out of the skin of the Angora goat, especially selected for the length and silkiness of the hair. These are embellished with a fine leather fringe six inches in length which admirably sets off the otherwise gorgeous garment. In the line of frontier goods there are also cartridge-belts, gun-scabbards, pistol-bolsters, hobble-chains for grazing horses, knife-scabbards and other articles.

These articles constitute part of the trade with the developing country west of St. Louis, which has always belonged to the city. The trade in light harness, however, which formerly belonged almost entirely to the East, is now an important branch of the local operations. Three years ago a firm employed just ten men upon work of this description; to-day it employs one hundred and fifty, and harness they make is sent to all parts of the country. In the East the buggy is the popular means of locomotion, and away off in the New England States, south as far as Florida and north in Minnesota, the people have found out that St. Louis harness is at once the cheapest and best that can be had. As in saddles, so in harness, the St. Louis manufacturers aim to produce articles that will suit tastes of all sorts and pockets of all depths, and their price-lists take in single harnesses which range from $6 to $100, and double sets at from $13 50 to $175.

The only rivals which St. Louis possesses in the saddlery line are the cities of Chicago, Cincinnati and New York. New York used to be ahead in light harnesses, but this city has surpassed her in style, quality and price, and invaded her territory to great advantage. The other cities named are away behind St. Louis. Chicago has only three factories, Cincinnati has four, New York has three, while St. Louis has eleven, the largest of which far surpass in the extent of their operations any of the outside manufactories. These eleven establishments represent a capital of about $2,500,000, and do a yearly business of nearly $4,000,000. They give almost constant employment to over 1,200 hands who are paid at the average rate of $15 per week.

It must not be considered that only saddles and harness are made in the St. Louis saddleries, as it is the pride of the local manufacturers that they make and sell everything that belongs to the horse. The only limit that can be placed to the growth of this most important trade is that which will put an end to immigration. When the now unoccupied tracts of American arable and pasture lands shall all be settled, the time may be considered at hand for the St. Louis saddlers to give up the search for new business in fresh localities. In the meantime, as immigration continues to swell the population of the West, the new comers will contribute to the wealth of this interest. The city is so centrally situated that it will always command, as it now does, trade in all directions, and what energy it has to spare after supplying the working population of the West with the necessaries incident to their occupation will be devoted to pushing the sale of the more elegant of their wares in the East. With these two fields claiming the attention of St. Louis saddlers, and with Mexico and Cuba and South America to help out, the prospect for the future is a bright one and a large increase in the present enormous business can be confidently anticipated.

HE AND SHE.

Blue-eyed Mabeletta was returning home with Alphonsus Augustus. The full-orbed moon cast its silvery light upon their path, and illumed it with that pale cold nickel-plated hue which is in such pleasing contrast to the noon-day glare of the burning red sun. It was a time for meditation, for reflection, for sympathetic exchange of words of love and counsels of affection. Both Mabeletta and Alphonsus Augustus had burdens to carry. Not only were their hearts overloaded with gushing affection which longed to burst forth and well up to the brimming edge of loving lips, but they had taken in at the church-sociable much ice-cream, lobster salad, terrapin stew and frosted jelly-cakes of various patterns and degrees of ornamentation. Mabeletta's right hand was linked in the crook of the elbow of the left arm of Alphonsus Augustus. With his manly right hand he reached across under the edge of the shawl which sheltered his beloved from the chilliness of the autumn night. Grasping her dainty little hand in his, he stroked it tenderly and then turned and looked squarely into those liquid blue eyes of hers, which with lustrous response returned his loving gaze with compound interest.

"Mabeletta!" said he.

"Alphonsus Augustus!" responded she.

"I've been thinking—" said he.

"Yes," said the blue-eyed Mabeletta, "I reckon you have. So have I."

"Well, Mabeletta, what I've been thinking is that we two loving souls have been made for each other, and that we ought to be one."

"Ah! Yes, yes, two too loving," sweetly replied the object of his affections as under the fringed edge of the shawl she gave the big paw of her lover a responsive squeeze with her little terra-cotta-gloved hand. "Alphonsus Augustus, I will not deny that I love you. I dote on you. The fullness of my hope for present and future happiness is centered on your own dear self, and yet there is one thing which, I must own, stands in the way of our union."

"Alas! What?" nervously queried Alphonsus Augustus, as he thought of the conjectural number-fourteen boot of her father, the big barking dog of her elder brother, and the wrinkled criticisms of a possibly unfavorable mother-in-law. Could it be any or all of these? A cloud came over the bright prospects of the future, and all seemed dark.

"Tell me, my own Mabeletta, what is it."

"I fear to speak of such a subject to you," replied Mabeletta, with shortened, quickened, nervous breath, and another responsive squeeze of the manly paw of Alph. Aug.

"Tell me the worst," he gasped; "and if my doom is sealed I will to-morrow at dawn take six grains of strychnia."

"No strychnia for my own Alphonsus Augustus," lovingly responded Mabeletta; "there are better things in store for him. Alphonsus, you are weak and ailing. You are troubled with dyspepsia. The ice cream and things you have swallowed to-night have given you such an attack of indigestion that you will not sleep a wink till the rise of to-morrow's sun. You are not now fit for a husband, Alphonsus Augustus, but you will be. What you need is Brown's Iron Bitters, the purest and best tonic in the world. It knocks indigestion higher than ten thousand kites. It gives strength, and makes the blood rich and muscles strong, and tones up the nerves. See me, Alphonsus Augustus! I was poorly and pale and dyspeptic before you knew me. I took Brown's Iron Bitters. Look at me now—(and Alph. Aug. turned and looked a loving look into those healthy blue eyes, and saw by the pale moon's rays the plumpness of those lovely cheeks, and gave her hand under the fringed shawl another energetic squeeze)—Yes, I see you looking at me now;—and if you love me, take Brown's Iron Bitters and be strong."

And Alph. Aug. pulled out his memorandum book and wrote "Mem.—Brown's Iron Bitters. Buy of any druggist in our city, or anywhere else in the bounds of civilization. Bottle first thing to-morrow morning."

SPORTING SUNDRIES.

Billiard Topics--Racing—Aquatic—General News Notes.

The three-cushion carom billiard match at Mussey's yesterday afternoon between Benedict and Magnus, for $200 a side, was won by Benedict by nineteen points. The game consisted of but fifty points and the swiftness with which it was played was remarkable, the time occupied being 45 minutes and the game being won in 53 innings, making it the best three cushion carom game on record. After the match Mr. Jeffries, Magnus' backer, offered to back Benedict against Eugene Carter or any other man in the United States for a three-cushion carom game of 100 points for from $200 to $500 a side. Mr. Mussey telegraphed to Carter, at Chicago, last evening, proposing a match of 100 points, and as the three-cushion carom is Carter's favorite game it is thought that he will accept the challenge.

The eleventh game of the second-class amateur tournament was played at Mussey's at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon between C. Neff and Ed. Warren.
